WAITING — Lines of cars clogged the Shell Station at Third and Irwin streets in San Rafael early today, as motorists waited for their turn at the gasoline pumps. After a dry weekend, the gasoline situation will be "very bad" in Marin again this week until March supplies arrive, service station operators predicted.

Stations Plan Short Openings

The gasoline situation in Marin County "will be very bad this week" in the wake of a virtually dry weekend, according to Art Baptiste, president of the Marin County Independent Service Station Association.

A similar shortage was predicted for the Petaluma area, where frustration over the situation was taken out by vandals who smashed windows and cut a hose at service stations.

(In Marin, early Friday morning windows at 23 stations were broken by rock hurling vandals.)

Baptiste said that most stations will open only for short periods in mornings this week as dealers attempt to stretch their February allotments until new supplies arrive.

He said the oil companies have not yet told the dealers how much gasoline they will get for March, but he said he expected a "little bit more gasoline" for next month than in February.

He explained that oil companies are rationing gasoline to dealers on the basis of a percentage of the sales during the same month last year and that there was a larger volume of sales in March than February last year.

Meanwhile, local dealers were trying to stretch their gasoline, if they still had any, to last "one more day at a time." Virtually all Marin stations were closed yesterday, and lines of drivers were waiting this morning at whatever stations were open.

Baptiste said his own station at Northgate and others in the area were closed after only an hour or so of busily pumping gasoline this morning.

Rapidly rising gasoline prices are often being blamed on service station operators, Baptiste acknowledged, but he said that of the recent 11.5-cent-a-gallon rise in recent months, only 1.5 cents has gone to dealers.

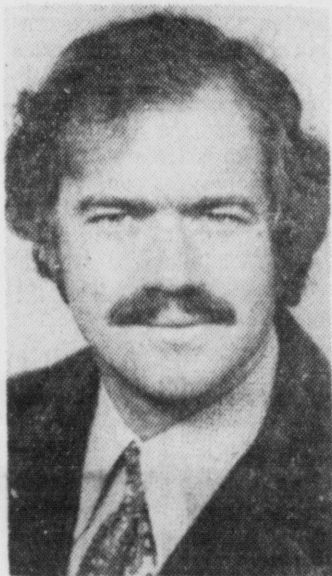

The other 10-cent increase reflects a rate increase by oil companies, which dealers pass on to their customers. (Dealers will be allowed to charge an additional 2 cents a gallon as of Friday, but Baptiste said that rumors that some dealers are waiting to sell gasoline at the higher prices "just can't be true." He said service station operators just don't have the gasoline to board until the first of the month.)

A vandal in Petaluma, who apparently blamed the high price of gasoline on dealers, smashed a brick through the window of the Jolly Washers Service Station and Car Wash at 483 East Washington Street.

Scrawled on the brick, which was found yesterday morning, was the message, "lower

RICHARD J. BOYLAN
Seeks water seat

Boylan To Seek Seat As Water Director

Richard J. Boylan of Woodacre today announced he will compete in the June 4 election for the Marin Municipal Water District directorship now held by Jack R. Felton.

Boylan's entry — when he files — will make it a four-way race with Graham McPhail Jr. of San Rafael, Winifred S. Frederick of Lagunitas and Betty Forry of Marinwood, for the Division I seat.

Boylan said he seeks election "because I believe the people of Marin want a strong conservationist who will continue the policy of restricting new water hookups until the county and cities implement growth control ordinances." He said the defeat of two major MMWD water import measures in 1971 and last year show that Marin

"does not want to become dependent on Sonoma water, and thus Sonoma politics."

The district has enough water to supply present needs and "allow for regulated growth" with careful planning, Boylan said.

Boylan, 34, was born in North Hollywood and holds master's degrees in education and social work. He is a clinical social worker with Marin Community Mental Health Services in San Rafael.

A Marin resident since 1971, he worked on the Fairfax Open Space Citizens Committee and is zoning committee chairman for the San Geronimo Valley Planning Group.

Boylan, his wife Charnette and a 1-year-old daughter live at 168 Central Avenue, Woodacre.

Shah Of Iran's Remarks 'Reckless,' Says Simon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Chief William E. Simon accused the Shah of Iran today of making "irresponsible and reckless" statements in saying that the United States was getting "more oil than any time in the past," in spite of the Arab embargo. (See related story, page 18.)

Simon said the government "has solid and hard numbers" on oil imports and that under its definition, the embargo is fully effective.

In a taped interview carried yesterday on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes," the Shah said that destinations for tankers loaded with oil were being changed when the ships were at sea. He suggested the action was taken by major oil corporations attempting to smuggle the oil into the United States.

Simon said this was ridiculous.

"I deem the Shah's charges irresponsible and reckless," Simon said in remarks to a meeting of the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors.

Simon said the Federal Energy Office calculated that a fully effective oil embargo would cut imports to about 4.9 million barrels a day. Last week, he said the total was 4.8 million barrels a day.

In his remarks to Lieutenant governors, Simon also said he was "at this time opposed to recommending to President Nixon "that nationwide gaso-

NIXON NEWS CONFERENCE ON THE AIR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was to hold a nationally broadcast and televised news conference at 7:30 p.m. EDT today, the White House announced.

The session in the White House East Room was to be Nixon's first news conference this year.

He held an hour-long question and answer session with newspaper editors in Florida in mid-November and conducted a televised East Room news conference on Oct. 26.

Kissinger To Try New Peace Move

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to London today on the first leg of what he called his most difficult Middle East mission yet—getting Israel and Syria together to discuss military disengagement on the volatile Golan Heights front.

Israel was having political troubles while Jordan tried to settle internal military problems.

Kissinger was staying overnight in London for talks with British leaders before flying on to Damascus tomorrow.

Several Arab leaders were on the road today also. And there were reports that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was expected in Cairo Friday to begin a four-day visit to Egypt.

China, also seeking to bolster its influence in Middle East, today greeted President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria with a "grand ceremony of welcome."

One of the most sensitive problems in the Syrian-Israeli impasse is a dispute over an estimated 80 Israeli prisoners of war held by Syria since the October Middle East war. U.S. officials were reported hopeful Syria will give Kissinger a list of the prisoners which they have refused to provide previously.

Both the Egyptian and the Israeli press have predicted that Kissinger will take such a list with him from Damascus to Israel later in the week.

Undersecretary of State Joseph J. Sisco, who accompanied Kissinger, acknowledged prior to departure from Washington that the obstacles to the latest Kissinger mission are large and sensitive. However, Sisco sounded a note of optimism when he said on a television interview this morning: "I think the atmosphere in the area is favorable. I think we have an unparalleled opportunity to make progress."

Kissinger himself declined to give a new assessment of the chances of his mission, to which he has previously referred as his most difficult yet.

Israel yesterday returned 56 Egyptian prisoners of war captured in flareups following the Oct. 24 cease-fire. The Tel Aviv military command said Israel now holds no more Egyptian prisoners although some Syrians are still in captivity pending a Golan Heights accord.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Golda Meir continued putting the finishing touches on her proposed minority cabinet which hawkish opposition leaders have vowed to vote down in the Israeli Knesset (parliament) at the earliest opportunity.

Mrs. Meir promised two cabinet seats to the Independent Liberal Party and was reported to be considering two men to succeed Moshe Dayan as defense minister—former ambassador to Washington Itzhak Rabin and former army chief of staff Haim Bar-Lev.

Dayan's Rafi faction of Mrs. Meir's Labor Party has promised to support the new Meir government but refused to take part in it. Dayan had sought to bring the rightwing Likud bloc into a national unity government but Mrs. Meir called that plan "a disaster for the state."

Labor leaders also continued to seek the support of the National Religious Party (NRP), which left her coalition in a dispute over who is a Jew and who isn't.

WILLIAM M. KORTUM

Kortum Asks Sonoma Supervisors Seat

William M. Kortum of Petaluma announced today his candidacy for the second district seat on the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors.

The 46-year-old operator of a Cotati veterinary hospital said the emphasis of his campaign will be on controlling growth.

A nine-year member and former president of the Petaluma Board of Education, Kortum said he has "witnessed the damage done to the quality of education during the period of uncontrolled growth in the last few years. We must do better than this."

He said he is an environmentalist. "Although I am proud of that title, the popular meaning of the word doesn't define all that I stand for. The environment that I am concerned with is the whole human environment, consisting of our natural surroundings and our economic vitality," he said.

He was a leader in the fight to control development of the remaining undeveloped portions of the California coast and an architect of the coastal commissions created by popular vote to protect it.

Kortum promised he will work toward "reversal of the negative attitude of the supervisors in regard to the Petaluma environmental plan."

He termed the county's land use policies "wasteful" and said he hopes to "end the confrontation politics existing between city and county government."

An unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the First Congressional District seat in 1970, Kortum is a life-time resident of Petaluma and a former president of the Cotati Chamber of Commerce.

He lives at 180 Ely Boulevard with his wife, Lucy, and has three children.

Sunday Apartment Blaze Does $27,000 In Damage

A fire gutted a Woodland Avenue apartment and did $27,000 damage early yesterday, according to San Rafael firemen.

The flames which broke out in Apt. 19 at 45 Woodland temporarily trapped tenant Fletcher Lesly, 18, but he leaped through a rear window to safety. He was treated for glass cuts in his back, according to Battalion Chief George Hosler.

The fire was reported at 2:12 a.m.; "When I left the station I could see it lighting up the sky," Hosler said. Firemen arrived to find flames spreading from the apartment to the eaves of neighboring apartments on both sides. Crews put out the blaze within 14 minutes after they arrived.

Hosler said one car parked outside the building was damaged by the fire; damage to Lesly's belongings in the apartment was estimated at $2,000 and to the building itself at $25,000.

Fire investigators said they believe the fire resulted from a lit cigarette dropped into a sofa.

Fifteen men and four pieces of equipment fought the fire.

Fisherman's Body Found

The body of a Berkeley man who was swept into the ocean while fishing near Muir Beach on Feb. 17 was recovered yesterday from a rocky area near where he is believed to have drowned.

Marin County Sheriff's deputies said the body of Vernon Gurule Lucero, 31, was spotted by two visitors about a mile and a half south of Muir Beach.

The Marin County Fire Department could not get the body across the rocky shore to higher ground, and a Coast Guard helicopter was called in to carry it out.

An autopsy was scheduled by the Marin County Coroner's office.

A Guilty Plea Is Entered By Kalmbach

President's Attorney Violated Campaign Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert W. Kalmbach Jr., President Nixon's personal attorney, pleaded guilty today to violating campaign practice laws during the 1970 congressional elections.

Kalmbach, a long-time friend and fund raiser for the President, was the sixth person close to the Nixon administration to plead guilty in a compromise with the Watergate special prosecutor's office as a result of investigations growing out of the scandal.

More Watergate indictments are expected soon but the prosecutor's office has held off on them until a jury is sequestered in the New York trial of former Nixon Cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans.

The two charges against Kalmbach—that he solicited $3.9 million in funds for an illegally organized campaign committee and offered a European ambassadorship to J. Fife Symington Jr.—were related to the 1970 congressional campaigns and not directly with the Watergate case.

Symington was said to be a long-time friend of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and was active in Agnew's early political campaigns.

Kalmbach's role as President Nixon's personal lawyer has been somewhat diminished since the dimensions of the Watergate scandal began to unfold early last year. Kalmbach's lawyers said today he still handles some matters for the President.

As late as last December, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters that Kalmbach was authorized to sign checks on Nixon's personal account. His firm still handles some personal affairs for Nixon.

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said no further charges would be made against Kalmbach since he pleaded guilty. Jaworski said the pleas would not bar prosecution however if Kalmbach gave false testimony or if other offenses unknown by the prosecutor's office were turned up.

In Senate Watergate Committee testimony last summer, Kalmbach was identified as paymaster for political saboteur Donald Segretti. American Airlines also said it made an illegal political contribution to the Nixon campaign at Kalmbach's urging.

Others who pleaded guilty to charges growing out of the Watergate investigation prior to Kalmbach's action included Egil Krogh Jr., John W. Dean III, Frederick C. LaRue, Jeb Stuart Magruder and Herbert L. Porter.

Kalmbach, senior partner in a Los Angeles law firm, answered "yes" each time Federal Judge John J. Sirica asked him if he agreed with allegations against him by the government.

Kalmbach could receive sentences of up to three years in prison and fines of $11,000. Sirica

Sadat's Hopes Great For Mideast Peace

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Egypt's President Anwar Sadat said today he has "great hope" for peace in the Middle East because of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's trips to the region.

Sadat, who flew to New Delhi after the breakup of the 30-nation Islamic summit conference in Lahore, Pakistan, said yesterday he was optimistic about Kissinger's current Middle East mission.

"Let us hope that it will end in a durable peace," the Egyptian leader said. "I can assure you after my many meetings with Dr. Kissinger there is great hope."

Sadat said "the most important achievement" of the three-day Islamic conference was the reconciliation of Pakistan with Bangladesh.

"I hope this will be the beginning of a new era on the subcontinent," he said about the decision of Pakistan to recognize Bangladesh, its former eastern wing.

Sadat, while still in Lahore earlier in the day, said he saw a change in U.S. policy toward the Arabs "especially after the very dark era of the (Lyndon B.) Johnson administration."

Gold Prices Set Records

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold skyrocketed to new all-time records all over Europe today. The U.S. dollar gained while gold inched toward $170 an ounce on most markets and passed it on one.

Gold sold on the open market in Paris today for $173.17 an ounce, its highest price at any time and in any place.

It zoomed to $169.50 an ounce in London and closed at $169 an ounce in Zurich and Frankfurt. All were new all-time records.

Gold's "official" price is $42.22 an ounce, although not even governments or government banks sell it at that rate any more. Dealers said the zooming gold price of the last few trading days now has established a momentum of its own, with speculators no longer fearing unstable paper currencies so much as they were betting that the gold price had virtually no limit.

Liberal Position Gains In Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, fighting for his political life in the crucial final days of Britain's Feb. 28 election battle, called today for "a large majority and clear authority" for his governing Conservative party.

But Jeremy Thorpe, leader of the suddenly resurgent third-ranking Liberal party, said its bandwagon advance may put it in a position to form a new government.

Heath did not directly mention the Liberal advance at his daily campaign news conference.

But he said "the main issue is to send back a government with a large majority and a clear authority to deal with all the important matters which face us in the next five years. It is for this mandate we are asking the country Thursday."

Heath said Britain faces "a serious and difficult" economic situation in the next few years and "needs a government able to handle this difficult situation."

But Thorpe, buoyed by opinion polls which gave the Liberals up to 28 per cent of popular support, said at his daily news conference: "We could be in a position to form a government Thursday—with or without a majority in the House of Commons."

"At the very least," he said, "there will be a strong contingent of Liberal members of Parliament. The second possibility is a Liberal party on a par with both other parties in a situation in which no one party has an overall majority. This would place us in a position to exert a direct and moderating influence on the direction of the next government."

As he has done throughout the campaign, Thorpe spoke to his news conference by closed circuit television from Barnstaple, in North Devon, where he is fighting a tough battle to hold his own tightly marginal parliamentary seat against a Conservative and a Labor party candidate.

But Heath appeared as usual at his news conference at Conservative party headquarters, wearing a dark blue suit, blue shirt and blue tie for the benefit of television cameras.

The country's 40 million voters will cast their ballots Thursday in parliamentary elections to decide who runs Britain for the next five years.

Heath ordered the election in the hope of winning a new mandate to lead the country out of what he has called Britain's worst industrial crisis since World War II.

The crisis, sparked by a nationwide slowdown and then strike by 269,000 coal miners, as well as Arab oil cutbacks, forced the Heath government to impose a three-day work week Dec. 31 to save dwindling fuel supplies.

Three opinion polls last week showed Heath's governing Conservatives narrowly ahead of the Labor party. One poll put Labor in front by a tiny margin.

All four surveys, however, showed a dramatic eleventh hour surge of support for the small Liberal party, giving Britain's third-ranking political group between 16 and 28 per cent of the vote.

Political commentators said the Liberal support apparently came from voters disillusioned with the two major parties.

They said the Liberals would get up to 8 million votes and at least 20 seats in the new 635-member House of Commons. The Liberals had only six seats in the old parliament.

Thorpe said, however, the poll results were "staggering" for the Liberals and could give them up to 100 seats in the new parliament.

After long ignoring the Liberal threat, Heath finally turned his guns against them. "The country has really got to make a choice," he said. "This is no time to sit in the middle and say we are not going to make a choice."

when several workers at a plant in San Antonio, Tex., were fired for union organizing. The action triggered walkouts culminating in a May 9 strike by 2,000 workers at Farah's Gateway plant in El Paso, Tex.

In July, 1972, AFL-CIO President George Meany called for a nationwide consumer boycott of Farah slacks.

An ACWA spokesman said the National Council of Churches, the National Democratic Committee, the mayors of New York, Philadelphia and Los Angeles and eight football stars from the Minnesota Vikings were among the organizations and public figures supporting the boycott.

In January, the National Labor Relations Board ruled in favor of the workers' claims that Farah Co. was guilty of unfair labor practices. Last Friday, the ACWA informed management it had collected cards from 67 per cent of company workers in favor of union recognition.

Farah agreed to comply with workers' demands Saturday after the card tally was verified by El Paso Mayor Fred Herve.

Farah would not say how much money his company lost during the strike and boycott, but a union spokesman said earnings last year were down to $126 million—a drop of almost $20 million from prestrike earnings of $164 million in 1971.

Settlement Reached In Boycott, Strike Of Slacks Manufacturer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Calling it "one of labor's finest moments," 10,500 predominantly Mexican-American women employees of the country's largest maker of men's and boys' slacks have won union representation, ending an 18-month strike and boycott.

The agreement was announced yesterday in a joint statement issued by the workers' new union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (ACWA), and the president of Farah Manufacturing Co., William Farah.

A union spokesman called the agreement "one of labor's finest moments." He said it was a victory not only for the workers, almost all of them Mexican-American women, but "a major breakthrough for the right of workers to organize throughout the Southwest."

Official Auto No Gas Ticket

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The official car didn't impress the gasoline station operator a bit.

Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey sent Paul Lauder, his state police chauffeur, off with the car to look for fuel while Lucey taped a television show over the weekend.

One station owner told the trooper his tanks were dry. Lauder said, but when he drove past later he saw gasoline being pumped into an auto that obviously rated higher with the station operator.

Avoid traffic. Swim to Dominic's.

If we're to keep up with the competition in the restaurant business these days, we have to offer an advantage of some kind besides just truly superior food and drink. One day someone noticed that our location on the San Rafael Yacht Harbor meant customers could swim directly to our private docks from almost any point in the Bay Area. We checked to see if any of our competitors were stressing this, and none were. So if you don't want to fight traffic getting to a fine restaurant, now you know what to do.

Gas Lack Helps Transit Systems

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The difficulty to get gasoline has meant a boom for the nation's mass transit systems. Some of them are thriving on the new business but others are finding that long years of neglect have left them in poor state to handle the new riders.

Mass transit systems in Columbus, Ohio; Sacramento and Santa Monica, Calif.; Albany, N.Y.; Honolulu; Dallas; New York City; Seattle; and Boston all recorded increased business, according to an informal survey by UPI.

But on the darker side, some transit operations such as Allegheny County's Port Authority covering the Pittsburgh, Pa., area are confronted by rapidly increasing ridership that has taxed their available resources to the limit.

The only transit systems not reporting a big influx of new riders were Chicago's Transit Authority and Chicago's three major commuter rail lines, where increases were up only slightly.

The Chicago Transit Authority reported a 5 to 10 per cent increase in ridership since the beginning of the year and said it now carries about 2 million passengers a day—1 million making round trips.

The commuter railroads—Chicago and North Western, Burlington Northern and Illinois Central—estimated increased passenger business at between 1 and 4 per cent. All said the increase had not been enough to play any part in considering future fare hikes.

Pennsylvania's Delaware River Port Authority said the gas shortage had presented it with a new problem. Almost 370,000 fewer cars used the Walt Whitman and Ben Franklin bridges linking New Jersey with Philadelphia last month compared with a year ago, cutting the authority's revenues by almost $200,000.

At the same time, the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority listed increased business at about 1.5 per cent in Philadelphia and 3.5 per cent in the suburbs. The authority said it was adding between six and nine new trains for downtown peak hour operations and considering weekend and off-peak fare cuts.

Among the most spectacular gains in mass transit were Seattle and New York City.

With one of the most extensive transit systems running from suburban southern Connecticut, Long Island, the northern suburbs as well as the city itself, New York's transit authority last December began offering round trips at one-way price on Sundays.

Bus ridership jumped 90 per cent, subways 42 per cent and the suburban trains more than 50 per cent, with total passengers up by 500,000 to 2 million on Sundays.

Transit Authority Chairman William Ronan said the program was "more successful than our most optimistic appraisals" and further fare concessions might be offered for off-peak services. The key, he said, is to keep fares down and a solution has been sought for months to prevent a boost in the 35-cent city bus and subway rate.

Metropolitan Seattle's transit services logged a patronage increase of almost 17 per cent in 1973, and officials expect a 30 per cent jump this year. A fare-free "Magic Carpet Zone" launched in downtown mainly to cut down congestion has shown a 90 per cent increase.

So popular have bus services become there, that transit director Clare H. Salley Jr., is planning to ask some government offices and key businesses to stagger working hours to avoid the rush. Pacific Northwest Bell and the Seattle First National Bank are among some major employers considering Salley's request partially to subsidize transit services by buying tickets at the regular price and reselling them to employees at reduced rates.

U.S., Latins Agree To Discuss Issues Quietly

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The United States and Latin America have agreed to avoid heated confrontations over major problems facing the Western hemisphere and take them up quietly in a series of future, informal meetings.

In a vaguely worded statement made public yesterday, the United States and its Latin American allies agreed on "a new dialogue of the Americas" aimed at calmly discussing the region's most controversial problems.

The statement, following a three-day meeting between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and 24 Latin American foreign ministers, agreed to begin taking up the more serious problems at a new round of talks April 17 in Atlanta, Ga.

The future discussions would take up such issues as the influence of multinational corporations, foreign aid and trade preferences, cooperation on the energy crisis, international monetary reform and transfer of technology from U.S. firms to host countries.

The declaration called for a renunciation of force in Western hemisphere relations, but made no mention of Cuba, which many foreign ministers had expected to be an explosive issue at the conference.

Kissinger, who set out today on a new Middle East peace mission, clung to a simple strategy during his three days of talks with the sometimes volatile Latins—he declined to debate anything controversial.

He kept smiling blandly, nodding agreement with practically everyone.

By the time the issues had been put down in writing, specifics had been dropped in favor of presenting a united front.

In addition, previous U.S. agreements with Panama over the explosive canal dispute and Peru on nationalizations of American firms diffused two potentially hot issues even before the conference began on Thursday.

Yet there were some concrete results also in the "Declaration of Tlatelco," named after the Mexican Foreign Ministry building, where the conference took place.

The diplomats agreed on the "effective participation" of Latin America in international monetary reform and recommended the creation of a "system of collective economic security" in the region.

Pot Initiative Signups Claimed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sponsors of a measure to legalize the use of marijuana said today they think they have enough signatures to place the proposal before California voters in November.

Backers of the California Marijuana Initiative said they have collected more than 400,000 signatures to make sure there are at least 325,504 that are valid. The filing deadline was today.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Chou Speaks On Current Issue

HONG KONG (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai, speaking out publicly for the first time this year on the mass ideological campaign sweeping China, said it was "of great immediate significance and far-reaching historic importance."

Chou, as leader of what generally is described as a "moderate" faction following, is considered as one of the targets of attack by radical leftists centered around Chiang Ching, the wife of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Chou spoke last night at a banquet hosted by President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia.

His 600-word speech concentrated on China's current political campaign centering around criticism of two dead men.

Although the targets are Confucius and Lin Biao, Mao's ex-heir apparent who died in an attempt to become No. 1, experienced China analysts say the real targets of attack and counter-attack are Chou and other top level leaders.

For Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former White House aide and presidential speechwriter who resigned last December says he feels President Nixon should be impeached.

John K. Andrews Jr., the first former White House aide publicly to go on record for impeachment, made the comment during an interview on the National Public Affairs Center for Television program "Washington Straight Talk." The program will be aired tonight.

Asked about his views concerning impeachment, Andrews said the question was one "that I approach with terrible reluctance."

"It's the saddest subject that I feel I've ever had to consider as a citizen of this country," he said. "But with that reluctance, I'd have to say yes."

Rebels Attacked

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — More than 2,000 government troops supported by artillery and propeller-driven T28 fighter-bombers have launched a major operation to clear rebel forces from Phnom Penh's southern perimeter, field reports said today.

The attack by four battalions of the 3rd Infantry Division and 40 armored personnel carriers, backed by artillery and air strikes, met fierce resistance only seven miles from the capital.

Tanker Rescue

HONOLULU (UPI) — Thirty-one survivors and the bodies of seven of their shipmates arrived aboard a Coast Guard cutter last night after fire and explosions sank their Italian tanker in the mid-Pacific.

Seven sailors died when the Giovanna Lolli Ghetti went down Friday night after the ship caught fire in a string of explosions.

Cause of the fire and explosions was not known.

Federal Salaries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report compiled by a private tax foundation indicates salaries of average federal employees are rising faster than private industry's and the cost of living.

Average earnings of federal employees increased 88 per cent from 1962 to 1972, compared with a 66 per cent average in private industry and a 38 per cent rise in the consumer price index, the report, prepared by the nonprofit Tax Foundation, Inc., said.

Foreign Impact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Immigration figures have not changed in the United States for many years but foreign-born persons are becoming a more significant force in the population picture because the country's birth rate is declining, according to Census Bureau figures.

The figures showed present flow of people into the United States was a far cry from the surge of immigrants that arrived at a rate of 1 million a year at the turn of the century. Their original homes are changing with more new Americans coming from Latin America and Asia than Europe, as before.

Last year 350,000 foreigners entered the United States with the intent of establishing permanent residence. With a few exceptions, that is roughly the same number that has arrived each year since the 1950s.

Economic Talks

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam, beset with serious economic problems that threatened national bankruptcy, began a week-long series of conferences today that officials hoped would bring a solution.

President Nguyen Van Thieu called in top advisers to work on a set of temporary measures to slow inflation.

Government sources said South Vietnam had less than $100 million in foreign reserves today, although it has continued to buy imports at the rate of more than $5 million a week.

The sources said Thieu has decided to give top priority once again to fighting corruption.

Young Man Slain

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — An army patrol found the body of a young man with his hands and feet tied, an apparent assassination victim, in Londonderry's Roman Catholic Creggan district late last night, the army said.

In Londonderry, the Provisional Irish Republican Army said the man was an informer who had given the authorities the location of hidden arms for a fee of 100 pounds ($230).

The death raised the toll to 959 persons killed in the more than four years of strife among Northern Ireland's majority Protestants, minority Catholics and security forces.

MORTAR ATTACK VICTIMS

A Moslem family rested in a hospital in Jolo, Philippines, Saturday after doctors amputated the father's and daughter's arms. They were wounded Feb. 8 during a mortar attack by Moslem rebels. Government troops attacked the remaining 100 men of the rebel force yesterday and killed at least 60 of them, military authorities said.

Mitchell-Stans Trial Goes Slow

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of prospective jurors selected in the Mitchell-Stans trial climbed slowly today as the case of the two former cabinet members in the Nixon Administration entered its second week.

Four more prospects were qualified during the morning session, bringing the total to 28. A total of 52 is necessary before final jury selection takes place. The trial was expected to get underway late this week.

When the case resumed today, one prospective juror was excused, the fifth since Friday afternoon. Only a handful of newsmen and spectators were at the courthouse to watch the arrival of the principals in the case.

The title: United States of America vs. John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans.

The theater: The gold-domed skyscraper on Foley Square named United States Court House, which has not seen two such nationally prominent figures involved in one case since two United States Supreme Court justices appeared as character witnesses for Alger Hiss 25 years ago.

The burden of the plot: Obstruction of justice, conspiracy, and lying under oath to a grand jury. There are various subplots spun off from the Watergate masterpiece that has had such a long run in Washington.

As soon as the Mitchell-Stans federal court jury of 12, plus 6 alternates, is sworn and locked up away from possibly hurtful news, the expectation is that additional Watergate indictments will issue from a Washington grand jury.

If convicted, Mitchell, the poker-faced positive personality, former Wall Street lawyer and attorney general, and Stans, the chipper self-made millionaire from the Midwest who once was Commerce Secretary, could get top prison terms of 50 years.

When the first trial week ended Friday, 24 persons had been qualified as prospective jurors. Only 24 veniremen were left for questioning out of 158 with which the trial started, and U.S. District Court Judge Lee P. Gagliardi has ruled that 52 persons must be qualified before the attorneys start their challenging.

Science Panel Says Organic Foods Have No Added Benefit

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The health and organic food fad sweeping the nation is a scientific myth fostered by a noisy outpouring of propaganda and misinformation, a panel of scientists charged today.

Dr. Stephen Barrett, of Allentown, Pa., said it is health nonsense and a multimillion dollar racket, and Dr. Thomas H. Jukes, professor of medical physics at the University at Berkeley, said the organic food movement "is counterproductive to human welfare."

"The myth states that food has superior qualities for health when produced with the so-called use of 'natural fertilizers' and without 'chemical' pesticides, food additives or chemicals or drugs used to stimulate or regulate growth of farm animals," Jukes said. "No such superior qualities have been shown to exist."

The subject was discussed at an opening session of the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Other symposiums today ranged from the energy crisis to an old and highly controversial suggestion the Earth, Mars and Venus nearly collided between 1500 b.c. and 775 b.c.

Dr. Emil M. Mrak, chancellor emeritus of the University of California at Davis and chairman of a federal commission on pesticides, said the organic food industry accounted for an estimated $500 million in sales in 1972 and may reach the $3 billion mark by 1980.

"This, therefore, is indeed a viable industry that demands serious study in the interest of health and personal welfare," Mrak said in a paper. "This gives rise to the question as to whether or not there are differences in the composition of these foods and the standard products on the market."

Mrak said experiments conducted for 25 years at the Michigan Experiment Station, for 24 years at the U.S. Plant Soil Nutrition Laboratory and in England show there are no differences whether foods are grown on soils fertilized with animal or synthetic fertilizers.

Dr. Daniel I. Arnon, chairman of cell physiology at the University of California, Berkeley, said in another prepared report it makes no difference whether nutrition is added to the plant in the form of chemicals or organic materials, because all plant food enters roots in an inorganic form.

Jukes said food faddists and eccentrics have been around for years but have made significant inroads into the general population during the past decade by arousing fear in appeals to "emotional illusions of purity and vitalism."

"All foods have always contained substances that are poisonous in large amounts and are harmless at the levels consumed daily," he said at a press session news conference.

Barglett, who is chairman of the Lehigh Valley Committee Against Health Fraud, said people are easily frightened by what they do not understand.

"Pseudoscientists warn that our food supply is poisoned," he said.

The immediate and urgent removal of the following cargo has been demanded from the warehouse where they are presently being held. Contents are bales of luxurious merchandise: Finest Persian carpets and some valuable Oriental rugs. This cargo is for liquidation due to the financial difficulties of a corporation presently involved in insolvency. All bales will be removed from warehouse and will be opened and each rug will be auctioned individually to the highest bidder.

Clausen Is Seeking Seventh House Term

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Rep. Don Clausen, R-First District, has filed for reelection to a seventh term.

The congressman formerly represented Marin until Marin was shifted to a joint district with San Francisco in 1968. Some 5,000 persons in the rural Petaluma area have been added to the Marin-San Francisco district under this year's reapportionment.

Clausen, first elected in 1962, filed nomination papers on Friday. His district runs to the Oregon border, and includes Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino, Lake, Humboldt and Del Norte counties. It will be remembered the Second District came under the state Supreme Court's reapportionment.

The congressman said he will report the identity of every contributor to his campaign, although required to do so only for those giving $100 or more. Individual contributions will be limited to a maximum of $100, he said, and organizations limited to no more than $1,000.

Behr To Speak At GOP Session

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, will speak at the monthly meeting tomorrow of the Marin County Republican Central Committee.

The public session begins at 8 p.m. in the planning commission chambers, Marin Civic Center.

Behr is seeking reelection to a second four-year term. He is opposed in the June primary by Sonoma County Supervisor Robert Theiller.

line rationing be imposed. Simon said it would be more inequitable than present allocation system.

Simon said he would not recommend rationing until he was convinced the allocation program—which is three weeks old—would not work.

Some members of Congress contended that the allocation system was not working and that a nationwide rationing plan should be put into effect.

"I think rationing is the only answer, because in that way you can get away from this inequitable distribution which has plagued the gasoline situation over the past several months," Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., told UPI in an interview.

GUILTY

ca deferred sentencing until later.

Jaworski's office said Kalmbach would be called as a witness at trials of other figures expected to be indicted in the Watergate case.

The first charge against Kalmbach alleged that he solicited $3.9 million for 1970 Republican congressional candidates through a committee which in violation of law had neither a chairman nor treasurer.

The second charge accused Kalmbach of soliciting $100,000 from Symington in return for the promise of an unspecified ambassadorship in Europe. Symington, who was ambassador to Trinidad and Tobago at the time, did not get a European post.

The $100,000 was considered advance support for the 1972 presidential campaign, the prosecutor said.

Kalmbach was released on his own recognizance by Sirica with no restrictions on his movement other than he not leave the country. No date was announced for sentencing.

Tiburon Council To Discuss Condominiums

A proposed ordinance regulating approval of condominiums and the conversion of apartment buildings into condominiums will be discussed by the Tiburon City Council today at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

According to planning secretary Jean Ellingsen, the ordinance would give the city power to require that such condominium projects include special yards and open spaces, special landscaping and maintenance of grounds or ways of stopping noise, vibration and odors from traveling between condominium units.

Also today, the council will hear a request from developer Fred G. Zelinsky of Belvedere that it overrule a planning commission decision requiring Zelinsky to submit a master plan for all his downtown property before the commission will review plans for any more building on it.

Teacher Layoffs Before Board

A recommendation from the Mill Valley School District superintendent that the district prepare to lay off teachers because of declining enrollment will be discussed by the district board today at 8 p.m. at the Mill Valley Middle School.

Supt. Peter Palches noted at the last board meeting that average daily attendance in the district at the end of 1973 was 3,198 pupils compared to 3,351 last year at the same time. When enrollment drops, state aid to the district also does.

The district already has held lotteries to assign seniority numbers to its 177 full-time administrators and teachers.

OBITUARIES

Cattleman Jacobsen Dies At 82

J. Carl Jacobsen of Petaluma, a well-known cattleman in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. He was 82.

Born in Denmark, he went to Salt Lake City, Utah, 66 years ago, settling in Petaluma two years later. He operated a ranch on Chapman Road outside Petaluma most of his life.

His wife, Anna Jacobsen, died in August.

He was a member of the Danish Society, Dannerborg, Danner No. 10, and the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Petaluma Lodge No. 30.

Survivors include a daughter, Julia Foster of Sebastopol; two sons, Elray and Walter Jacobsen of Petaluma; a sister, Hedvig Heddin of Vallejo, 12 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the Sorensen Funeral Home in Petaluma. Odd Fellow services will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow. Entombment will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

CHRISTINE KALVE

Private funeral was held today in San Rafael for Christine Kalve, 6-month-old infant daughter of Kari and Ole Kalve of 5 Mount Palomar Court, Lucas Valley.

The child, who reportedly had been in good health, was found dead in her crib Friday by her mother.

The coroner's office said the child appeared to be the victim of sudden infant death syndrome.

In addition to her parents, the child is survived by two sisters, Elizabeth and Willa, and a brother, Siv Kalve, and grandparents in Norway.

LOUISE CABLE

A Mass of the Christian Burial for Ruth Louise Cable, sister of Norma E. Thomas of San Anselmo, will be offered at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in the St. Cecilia Church, San Francisco.

Miss Cable, born in San Francisco and a lifelong resident of the city, died Saturday in a San Francisco hospital.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today in the McAvoy-O'Hara Evergreen Mortuary in San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

REV. ROBERT K. ATKINSON

Rev. Robert K. Atkinson of San Rafael, Boys Club leader and former director of the San Quentin Guidance Center, died Wednesday at a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. He was 93.

A native of Gilroy, he was reared in Santa Rosa and Sacramento and was a graduate of Northwestern University and Pacific Methodist College in Santa Rosa.

For many years he was head of the social welfare education department of the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City. This eventually led to the boys club movement, for which he was educational director until World War II.

During the war he and his wife, Maude, operated a service club for merchant seamen in Hawaii. He came to the San Quentin post after the war. After retiring from the prison staff some years later, he was pastor of the Guerneville Methodist Church and he also served at the First Methodist Church in Petaluma.

For seven years, Atkinson was a member of the Sonoma County Board of Education. His wife died in 1968.

Survivors include two daughters, Evelyn A. Ehrman of Washington, D.C., and Claire A. Broadhead of San Rafael; two sisters, Joetta Weston of Pacific Grove and Doris Lynn of Mountain View, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the United Methodist Church in Petaluma. Inurnment will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

The family prefers contributions to the Boys Clubs of America.

JAMES RODDY

A Mass of Christian Burial for James J. Roddy, father of Veronica Sabraw of Novato, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Apostleship of the Sea, San Francisco.

Roddy, 60, died Saturday in San Francisco after a short illness. He was chief chef at the Apostleship of the Sea, a seamen's center, and had been active in the rehabilitation of seamen.

He was a native and lifelong resident of San Francisco.

Surviving, besides his daughter, are a sister, Virginia Glover, and three grandchildren.

Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at Driscoll's Mortuary, San Francisco.

MRS. GIBSON

Mass of Christian burial for Elizabeth V. Gibson, mother of Viola E. Hale of Mill Valley, will be said Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church, Mill Valley.

Mrs. Gibson, 85, died Friday at a local convalescent hospital following a long illness.

A native of San Francisco, she had lived most of her life in that city and recently had moved to a convalescent hospital in Marin.

She was the widow of Otis Gibson, a civil engineer. They had been married 31 years.

Survivors include her daughter of Mill Valley, a son, Ward Gibson of Viburnum, Mo., and seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. She was also the mother of the late Otis George Gibson of Redwood City.

Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

The Rosary will be said today at 8 p.m. at Russell and Gooch Funeral Home, Mill Valley.

ANTONE KURIGER

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the Sorensen Funeral Home for Antone (Tony) Kuriger of Petaluma, longtime Southern Sonoma resident who died in a local hospital Friday after a long illness. He was 72.

A native of Einsiedeln, Switzerland, he came to the United States in 1921. He spent most of his life as a ranch hand on the Respini ranch near Petaluma, retiring in 1969.

Surviving are several nieces and nephews.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the funeral home. Burial will be in the Calvary Cemetery, Petaluma. The family prefers memorial contributions to favorite charities.

FRANCIS CASSIDY

A Mass of Christian Burial for Francis P. Cassidy, 76, a retired San Francisco Municipal Railroad foreman, was celebrated today at St. Isabella's Church, San Rafael.

Cassidy, of 2421 27th Avenue,

San Francisco, died Friday at a local hospital after a three-week illness.

He was a native of Donegal, Ireland, and had been a resident of California for 52 years. He had worked for the municipal railroad for 36 years.

Surviving are his wife, Helen T. Cassidy of San Francisco, five daughters, Helen Meiswinkel, Maureen Yavorsky and Bridget Barsotti, all of Novato, Dolores Bondanza of San Rafael and Rosaleen Adams of Iowa; two sons, Frank Cassidy of San Rafael and William Cassidy of San Francisco; and 21 grandchildren.

Burial was at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary was recited last night at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

IDA GRISWOLD

A Mass of Christian Burial for Ida A. Griswold of San Rafael will be held at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma. The Rosary will be recited at 8:30 p.m. today at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

Mrs. Griswold, 85, died Saturday evening in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of Massachusetts, she had lived in California since 1921, and resided in Marin for the past 35 years. She lived for the past three years with a daughter, Mrs. William Gardner of San Rafael.

She also is survived by three brothers, Ray L. and Stanley A. Simpson of San Francisco and Harry Simpson of San Rafael, and one grandson. She was the widow of Maurice H. Griswold.

Mrs. Griswold was a member of the Legion of Mary at St. Raphael's Church.

FLORENCE E. HUTTON

Mass of the Christian Burial was held today at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur for Florence E. Hutton, former Marin resident who died last Wednesday in Arlington, Va.

Mrs. Hutton, who was 79, was born in San Francisco.

She lived in Marin many years, making her home with her late daughter, Mrs. Jean Pierotti, in Kentfield. She was also preceded in death by her husband, the late Harold P. Hutton Sr., and a son, Harold P. Hutton Jr., who lived in Ross.

For the past year and a half, Mrs. Hutton had lived in Arlington with her daughter, Mrs. Patricia H. Cargill.

In addition to her daughter, she is survived by 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

MRS. HEACOX

Funeral for Jacqueline J. Heacox of Tiburon will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Eggen and Lance Mortuary in Santa Rosa.

Mrs. Heacox, 51, died suddenly Friday in a local hospital.

She was the wife of Russel L. Heacox, an engineer with the P and Z Company in South San Francisco. The couple had lived at 1325 Mar West Street for two years, moving here from Santa Rosa where they had lived for 22 years. Mrs. Heacox was a native of Portland, Ore., and had been married to her husband for 30 years.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Heacox is survived by a daughter, Teri Bertoli of Santa Rosa, and a son, William J. Heacox of Phoenix, Ariz.

MRS. BARTLETT

and Mary C. Austin, both of Corte Madera.

Mrs. Bartlett, 68, died Friday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

She was born in Colorado and grew up in Durango. She also lived in Denver for a time before moving to California about 25 years ago.

She was the wife of Joseph Bartlett, a retired carpenter.

In addition to her husband and the son and daughter in Marin, Mrs. Bartlett is survived by four other daughters, Dorothy L. Nicholas and Beverly L. Beauchamp, both of Denver, Betty Jo Crutchley of San Mateo and Corrinne Ann Winger of Hayward; another son, Gerald E. Bartlett of San Francisco, 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

CLARA KUSTER

Funeral in Elgin, Iowa, is planned for Clara Kuster of Strawberry.

Mrs. Kuster, 90, died Saturday at a local hospital. According to the coroner's office, she apparently suffered a stroke at home Friday, and was then hospitalized.

Mrs. Kuster was a native of Iowa. She came to California five years ago to live with her daughter, Elizabeth Allemen, at 224 Richardson Drive.

HEACOX — In San Rafael, Feb. 23, 1974. Jacqueline J. Heacox, beloved wife of Russel L. Heacox, loving mother of Teri Bertoli of Santa Rosa, and a son, William J. Heacox of Phoenix, Ariz.

Funeral was held today in Corte Madera for Florence R. Bartlett of San Francisco, mother of Harold R. Bartlett and Mary C. Austin, both of Corte Madera.

Mrs. Bartlett, 68, died Friday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

She was born in Colorado and grew up in Durango. She also lived in Denver for a time before moving to California about 25 years ago.

She was the wife of Joseph Bartlett, a retired carpenter.

In addition to her husband and the son and daughter in Marin, Mrs. Bartlett is survived by four other daughters, Dorothy L. Nicholas and Beverly L. Beauchamp, both of Denver, Betty Jo Crutchley of San Mateo and Corrinne Ann Winger of Hayward; another son, Gerald E. Bartlett of San Francisco, 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

CLARA KUSTER Funeral in Elgin, Iowa, is planned for Clara Kuster of Strawberry.

Mrs. Kuster, 90, died Saturday at a local hospital. According to the coroner's office, she apparently suffered a stroke at home Friday, and was then hospitalized.

Mrs. Kuster was a native of Iowa. She came to California five years ago to live with her daughter, Elizabeth Allemen, at 224 Richardson Drive.

RETURNS — An unidentified woman carrying sombreros climbs from an airplane at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. She was one of 32 passengers aboard a plane released by Cuba yesterday after being detained 24 hours. The pilot had been forced to land the plane, carrying missionaries, after he apparently flew at the wrong altitude when given permission to fly in Cuba air space. (UPI Telephoto)

'WOULDN'T TRADE EXPERIENCE'

Cuba Detains Missionary Plane

ALLIANCE, Ohio (UPI) — The leader of a group of 32 American and Canadian missionaries detained in Cuba for more than 24 hours during the weekend said today he "wouldn't trade the experience for anything in the world."

"We knew God had made our plane land for a purpose, and we know we made quite an impression on those who saw us," said Claude Ferguson, 36, of Alliance, whose church group was aboard an aircraft forced to land in Cuba Saturday.

The plane took off from Jamaica, en route to Ohio via Fort Lauderdale, Fla., but was forced down after noon Saturday by two Cuban jets. The pilot had obtained permission to fly over Cuban air space, but a U.S. State Department spokesman said he apparently did so at the wrong altitude.

The aircraft landed at Camaguey, Cuba, about 400 miles southeast of Havana. It was allowed to take off again the next day, after sponsors of the group paid $6,850 to Cuba, and finally arrived in Ohio at 11:20 p.m. yesterday.

"I think they will think twice before they force a plane full of Christians to land in their country again," Ferguson said. "We caused quite a commotion with our song and prayer sessions."

"It must have shocked the crowd of people that had gathered around the hotel when we began to sing and pray in unison. We even sang a simple little Spanish song some of us remembered."

"I wouldn't trade the experience for anything in the world," said Ferguson. He said the plane's flight crew handled all the negotiations with Cuban officials. He said the missionaries were treated exceptionally well by the Cubans.

"They took us to a hotel about two or three miles from the airport. We weren't told we couldn't leave, but it was understood that we shouldn't stray too far from the hotel grounds."

"We knew we were in what could have been a dangerous situation, but the Lord was with us and we knew we were in good hands. We were all excited at the idea of being the first Christian group in many years to stay in Cuba."

Loren Ralston, a spokesman for project Partner, Inc., a nonprofit, nondenominational missionary organization that sponsored the trip, said the plane left from Alliance two weeks ago. The missionaries aboard had built a parish house for a church in Jamaica and a small church in Haiti and were returning home. Ralston said the plane carried 22 persons from Ohio, seven from Michigan, three from Canada, plus three crew members.

Sources said the $6,850 payment asked by the Cuban authorities was raised by the Rev. Charles Thomas of Wichita and turned over to the U.S. State Department for transmittal through the Swiss Embassy in Havana, which handles American affairs in Cuba.

Report About Hoover Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — A published report that the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover funneled sensitive information about political opponents to some favored congressmen has been dismissed as "a lot of nonsense" by Rep. John J. Rooney.

The New York Democrat was named by the New York Times in today's editions as one of the congressmen so aided. The others were not named.

The Times said its information came from a "well-placed source," who was not further identified. The source was quoted as saying the FBI "did everything we could to help Rooney get elected."

Burton To Sponsor Bill Requiring Balanced Budget In Legislature

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A prominent Democratic assemblyman says he will sponsor a measure requiring the legislature to pass a balanced budget—an idea promoted by Gov. Ronald Reagan in his state-of-the-state address.

However, the proposed constitutional amendment also will contain a feature that Reagan didn't ask for. It would strip the governor of his power to veto any portion of the state budget he wishes.

Eskimo Thinking Found Unusual

NEW YORK (UPI) — Eskimos possess extraordinary abstract reasoning ability, more advanced than most preindustrial peoples, University of Chicago researchers have found.

The latest issue of Human Behavior magazine reports the findings by two University researchers of a nonlanguage test to measure the ability to reason abstractly.

Carol Feldman said Eskimos scored similarly to rural children in Illinois. This finding was "extraordinary" because people in preindustrial societies routinely score below average on standard Western measures.

Feldman said the scores showed what we were looking for—human adaptability.

"The purpose of the line-item veto is to allow the governor sufficient flexibility to bring a budget into balance," Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, said yesterday when he unveiled the measure.

"If the legislature is required to balance the budget, then the purpose of the line-item veto is lost," said Burton, chairman of the Assembly Rules Committee.

Reagan may well take a different view, however. In addition to balancing the budget, Reagan and other governors also have used the line-item veto to cut the "fat" out of state programs or kill projects they dislike.

Currently, the state Constitution requires the governor to submit a balanced budget and to propose higher taxes, if necessary, to make sure it is balanced.

In his state-of-the-state address, Reagan told the legislature:

"Since two safeguards are better than one, I shall ask you to pass a constitutional amendment imposing the same restraint on the legislative branch. It will specify that the legislature must return to the governor a balanced budget or propose additional taxes necessary to bring it into balance."

Burton did not quarrel with this argument, but insisted such a move should be coupled with the governor giving up his line-item veto power. "The responsibility of balancing the budget goes hand-in-hand with the power of the line-item veto," he said.

If approved by the legislature, the proposed constitutional amendment would appear on the November statewide ballot. It does not require Reagan's signature.

The measure would have its first impact on the new governor elected this fall, and as such could become a big issue in the gubernatorial race.

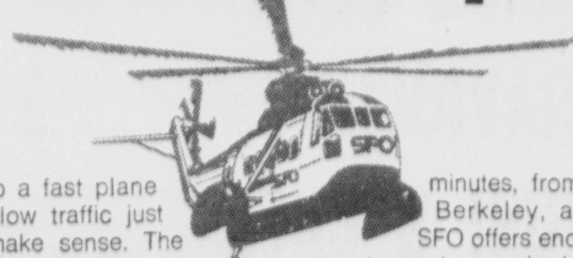

Reagan offered his proposal as a follow-up to Prop. 1, his tax limitation initiative which was defeated by voters last year.

Democratic lawmakers argued that, among other things, initiatives would shift the balance of power between the legislature and the governor too heavily in the direction of the executive branch.

KIDNAP TALE — Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy told newsmen Saturday how his abductors moved him around — one on either side of him. Murphy identified a burly building contractor as the "American Revolutionary Army" colonel who kidnaped him and collected a $700,000 ransom.

Kidnaper Fingered By Bilked Taxidermist

ATLANTA (UPI) — A Miami taxidermist who was billed out of $6,000 in a phony fuel oil deal provided the clue that identified the alleged kidnapers of Atlanta Constitution Editor Reg Murphy, it was disclosed yesterday.

Murphy, who was released unharmed Friday night after his newspaper paid $700,000 ransom, said he called W. Charles (Buddy) Becker to thank him for the tip to the FBI.

Five hours after Murphy, 40, was freed in a motel parking lot, FBI agents arrested William A. H. Williams, 33, and his wife, Betty Ruth, 26, at their home in suburban Lilburn. The ransom money was recovered intact.

"I'm glad he could pinpoint the man," Murphy said of Becker. "I think he was one of the people who led investigators to the house."

Becker said he telephoned the Miami FBI when he read that Murphy was lured from his home last Wednesday night by a man who wanted the editor of Georgia's largest morning newspaper to arrange for the donation of 300,000 gallons of fuel oil to charity.

Becker said he was approached in Miami last December by a man he identified as Williams, who claimed to be a general contractor with 300,000 gallons of fuel oil to sell. Becker said he met the man when he mounted a fish for him and agreed to buy the fuel oil "because my business depends on boats having diesel oil." Becker said the deal was for 23 cents a gallon and he and a partner gave the man a check for $6,000 as a down payment.

The taxidermist said the man flew back to Atlanta and called later to say the oil soon would be on its way. Becker said that's the last he heard and he wrote the deal off as a bad business venture when U.S. and state authorities said his only recourse was a civil suit.

The Atlanta FBI confirmed that it had received a tip Friday from "a citizen in Miami" regarding Williams. Special FBI agent in charge Leo Conroy said the bureau had reached "no definite conclusion" whether the Williamses acted alone or were part of what Murphy's kidnapers claimed was the "American Revolutionary Army." Indications were, however, that the FBI doubted the "army" existed and believes the kidnaping was "strictly for money."

Williams, a sheetrock subcontractor, and his wife, who has three small children by a previous marriage, were being held under a total of $1.5 million bond on kidnap and extortion charges.

Murphy said his kidnaper told him he was a "colonel" in the American Revolutionary Army, which had members in every major U.S. city and which planned to launch guerrilla warfare soon against the federal government and the "leftist, liberal" news media.

The FBI confirmed that a diary had been found in a car at Williams' $40,000 home in Lilburn, but agents refused to reveal its contents. CBS reported the diary contained Murphy's name and had entries indicating telephone calls to the Saudi Arabian Embassy. An embassy spokesman in Washington said, however, it had no record of any contact with Williams.

Oakland Tribune Publisher Dead

GUERNEVILLE (UPI) — William F. Knowland, newspaper publisher and former Republican U.S. senator, died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, an autopsy showed yesterday.

"The body was recovered at the water's edge, partially in the water," Undersheriff Robert Hayes said after the autopsy.

"The weapon, a .32-caliber automatic pistol, was recovered by a diver about two feet under the water, by the body. The evidence found, as first stated, indicated a self-inflicted gunshot wound."

"We have definitely ruled out foul play."

Knowland, 65, publisher of the Oakland Tribune, died Saturday as he stood on the muddy dock of his $100,000 redwood summer home along the Russian River 75 miles north of San Francisco.

No suicide note was found and there were no clues to indicate what prompted him to take his life.

Knowland had gone to the summer retreat Saturday morning after taking part in week-long celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of his newspaper.

The Sunday edition of the Tribune carried the simple headline, "William F. Knowland Dead," accompanied by a black-bordered photograph of the publisher.

A member of a pioneer California family, Knowland became the youngest senator in the nation when, in 1945 at age 37, he was appointed by then Gov. Earl Warren to serve out the term of the late Sen. Hiram W. Johnson.

Knowland had been California's youngest assemblyman at age 24, the youngest state senator at age 26, and the Republican National Committee's youngest executive committee chairman at 31.

He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1946 and re-elected in 1952. He was named GOP floor leader in 1953 and remained as minority leader the next year when Democrats gained control of the Senate.

When Knowland retired from the Senate in 1959, then majority leader and later President Lyndon B. Johnson said, "He is a gentleman, a statesman and a patriot."

After determining from official sources that no military secrets would be jeopardized, but that the Defense Department was trying to keep the test secret to avoid political pressure, Knowland ordered the picture printed. Government efforts to learn the source of the photograph failed.

Knowland eloped with his childhood sweetheart, Helen Herrick, while a student at the University of California. They were divorced in 1972 after 45 years of marriage and Knowland married Ann Dickson of Tulsa, Okla., and Las Vegas, Nev., later that year.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Knowland was lost while under tow Dec. 21, 1962 during a storm. The 72-foot craft had the Confederate "Merri-mac" to a draw at Hampton Roads, Va., in March of 1962 in what is considered the first clash between ironclad warships.

It was enroute to Charleston, S.C. to assist in a harbor blockade when it was lost.

Evangelist Says Rumors Untrue

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Evangelist Garner Ted Armstrong declined comment about news reports that six World-wide Church of God ministers resigned, complaining of his personal conduct and alleged "squandering" of church funds.

The Los Angeles Times, in a published report yesterday, said some of the ministers said they were disenchanted by the "profoundly immoral sexual activities" of the well-known radio and television evangelist.

Five of the ministers of the Pasadena, Calif.-based sect have resigned since November and a sixth was fired. The Times said they alleged that Armstrong committed adultery over a period of years, squandered the sect's title funds for personal uses and kept the church's doctrine inflexible.

Safety Buzzers Report Issued

DETROIT (UPI) — Buzzers and warning lights may induce some motorists to buckle up, but they are annoying enough to make half the drivers find some way around their use, two safety researchers reported today.

In their study of drivers using 1972 and 1973-model cars equipped with the buzzer and warning light, M.R. Appleby and L.J. Blintz of the Automobile Club of Southern California found an overall increase in the use of the lap belt.

"Approximately one third of the drivers who did not use lap belts previously will become users for the majority of vehicle trips when the reminder system is operative," they said in a report presented today to the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE).

"The buzzer-plus-light system will also increase the frequency of the lap belt use of those individuals who, prior to installation of the reminder system, used lap belts only occasionally," they said. "After long-term exposure to the reminder system, about one half of the drivers, however, will circumvent it."

The favorite ways, they said, are to knot the belt, wedge it in the retractor or fasten it behind them. A minority will go so far as to disconnect the electrical components.

The study was conducted by observing the belt-using habits of 35 employees of the auto club and did not include any 1974-model cars. They are equipped with an ignition interlock that requires the driver and front-seat passengers to buckle up before the car can be started.

Surveys conducted by General Motors and Ford indicate the use of the lap belt on the 1974 models is between 55 and 63 per cent, almost double that of 1973 cars.

Because the shoulder belt is not attached directly to the lap belt, use of that safety harness has also climbed to between 55 and 63 per cent from a very low 3 per cent a year ago. Ford officials contend that obtaining a usage rate of about 60 per cent is equal to having safety air bags installed in all cars.

In another report to the opening SAE session today, a General Tire Co. official said test results show that "a small but significant fuel saving can be achieved by using radial tires."

The results show that the steel belted radial tires fuel consumption rate is about 6 per cent less than the bias or belted-bias tire and about 3 per cent less than the rayon radial belted tire.

The test data also showed how fuel consumption varied with speed. A car equipped with an HR78-15 two-play steel and two-ply radial rayon body tire averaged 18.6 miles per gallon at 35 miles per hour, 18.4 m.p.g. at 50 m.p.h., and 13.7 m.p.g. at 75 m.p.h.

YMCA Announces Astrology Course

The Young Men's Christian Association will sponsor an eight-week class exploring the history, symbolism and interpretations of astrology. The course, which begins March 6, will be held Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Santa Venetia Middle School.

Instructor is Robert L. Pfeiffer, a lecturer at Indian Valley College in Novato. Registration will be at the YMCA, 241 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

GOP Strength Shows A Drop

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The latest Gallup poll shows Republican strength for this fall's congressional elections at the lowest level in the 38 years the Gallup organization has been taking such surveys.

The polling organization asked a total of 3,183 registered voters in two national surveys in January which party they would rather see win the congressional election in their home districts.

The Democratic party enjoys a 2-1 lead, 58 per cent to 29 per cent, with 13 per cent undecided. A Gallup spokesman said the results indicate the GOP would suffer a loss far greater than the average 29-seat loss suffered by the President's party in off-year elections in this century.

Governor's Car A Tight Squeeze

SALEM, Wash. (UPI) — Tom McCall, at six-foot, five-inches one of the nation's tallest governors, apparently is the first state chief executive to yield to a small car instead of a limousine because of the gasoline shortage.
 McCall recently took delivery on a German-made Audi 100 SL as his official auto.

Hearsts Await Kidnaper Word

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The FBI agent in charge of the Patricia Hearst kidnapping investigation said today he was not discouraged by a lack of response from the abductors to the family's latest ransom offer.

Three weeks after the 20-year-old granddaughter of publishing empire founder William Randolph Hearst was kidnaped from her Berkeley apartment by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, FBI agent in charge Charles W. Bates said there was "nothing new at all" in the investigation.

"We've just got nothing to indicate what the next step will be," Bates said.

At the Hearst family's suburban mansion a family spokesman said Patricia's parents' feelings "are just dried out, but they're hoping."

There still was no word from the SLA in response to the latest offer—a guarantee of a total of $6 million donated to a free food program by Patricia's father, Randolph Hearst, the Hearst Corp. and the William Randolph Hearst Foundation.

In a tape recording received last Thursday, the mysterious SLA "field marshal Cinque" demanded that Hearst put up another $4 million himself within 24 hours or the SLA would break off communication and hold Patricia indefinitely as a hostage for two SLA members in San Quentin Prison.

The two members referred to, Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 26, were to be arraigned in Alameda Superior Court today on charges of assassinating Oakland School Superintendent Marcus Foster last November.

Hearst and his family spent a quiet Sunday awaiting further developments at his Hillsborough estate on the San Francisco peninsula and the FBI assured that "our investigation is going along in the same vein that it has been."

Jay Bosworth, Patricia's brother-in-law, told reporters standing vigil at Hearst's home that the family was "just waiting and hoping for something to happen."

"There is nothing for us to do. It is frustrating, just waiting. We are hoping there will be some response (from the SLA) and we are hoping the response is the freeing of Patty."

"We feel she is still alive and healthy," Hearst responded Friday that he was unable to meet the demand personally, but a Hearst Corp. spokesman said the corporation would put up the money—only after Patricia was released unharmed.

"There is no indication that they have broken off communication as they have threatened," Bates said. "I don't think we're at that point, yet, certainly."

Bates said that the FBI "was interested in a number of people" in connection with the dramatic case, "but we're not actively going out and looking for anybody."

Bates said the only warrants out in connection with the case were for Donald DeFreeze, named by news media as "Cinque," and Thero M. Wheeler, a prison companion of DeFreeze's.

"We don't have warrants for anyone else," Bates said.

A. Ludlow Kramer, the Washington Secretary of State in charge of dispersing free food as demanded by the kidnapers, has promised that the chaos of last week's opening day will be remedied.

He said food would hereafter be delivered in advance of the Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday distribution days at the four centers named by the SLA.

The first day of the handout on Friday resulted in mobs that blocked traffic, attacked food trucks and tossed bundles freely. There were fist fights and four arrests as 9,000 persons received packages meant for 20,000.

Campaign Hits Congress Pay Hike Proposal

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Martin Horowitz says his private advertising campaign against a scheduled pay hike for Congress has attracted over 20,000 letters of support.

Horowitz, a 32-year-old toy distributor, placed four-column ads last week in five daily newspapers in this area.

"Congress is going to do it again to you," the ads said. "When was the last time you got a 25 per cent pay raise?"

The raise bill takes effect March 6 and raises congressional salaries from $42,500 to $52,800 over three years.

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — Exiled Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn hasn't decided whether to accept the offer of a mountain retreat once owned by the Norwegian Nobel Prize-winner Sigrid Undset in this central Norway resort town.

Per Egil Hegge, Solzhenitsyn's Norwegian host, said yesterday the Soviet Nobel laureate spent 22 hours over the weekend inspecting the house, but added "no decision about taking permanent residence in Norway has been taken."

Solzhenitsyn was to confer today in Oslo with government officials.

Maddox Announces For Second Term

ATLANTA (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox stood in a plush new hotel Saturday and made the big announcement that surprised nobody—he will run for his second term as governor of Georgia.

Maddox presented himself as a populist candidate and said he would look for support that crossed political, racial and social lines.

Legality Of Auto Repossession Laws To Get High Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide the constitutionality of state laws allowing banks and financial institutions to repossess automobiles without either advance notice or a hearing.

The justices accepted for oral arguments and a decision next fall or winter a test case from Chicago challenging an Illinois repossession statute.

The Court took these other actions:

Let stand a lower court ruling that the Federal Trade Commission has general authority to issue rules requiring gas stations to post octane ratings on their fuel pumps.

Refused to disqualify Justice William O. Douglas from participating in a natural gas rate case before the Court because he made a speech condemning the role of oil companies in the energy shortage crisis.

Automatically disbarred convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy from practicing in the Supreme Court. The New York state bar took similar action recently.

Decided to rule next term in a Montana case whether federal laws controlling liquor sales on Indian reservations are unconstitutional.

Upheld a lower court finding that an Ohio statute banning the sale of obscene books and magazines by persons holding liquor licenses is unconstitutional. A three-judge federal panel had said the Ohio law provided no legal guidelines and no hearing process.

The repossession suit was initiated against the Mercantile National Bank of Chicago and Illinois Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett.

The bank was sued by Alfredo Gonzalez in a class action suit. He told a three judge district court that the Illinois auto repossession statutes were unconstitutional because they failed to provide him "due process of law" under the 14th Amendment.

The lower court ruled that the bank repossessed the car in violation of the Illinois statute because Gonzalez was not in default on his payments. But the court said Gonzalez had no standing to challenge the law on constitutional grounds since the law wasn't properly applied in the first place.

Big Atomic Reactor Starts Slow Strip

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — A 150,000-pound atomic reactor shroud and rig began a 66-mile trip early today under escort by state and local police.

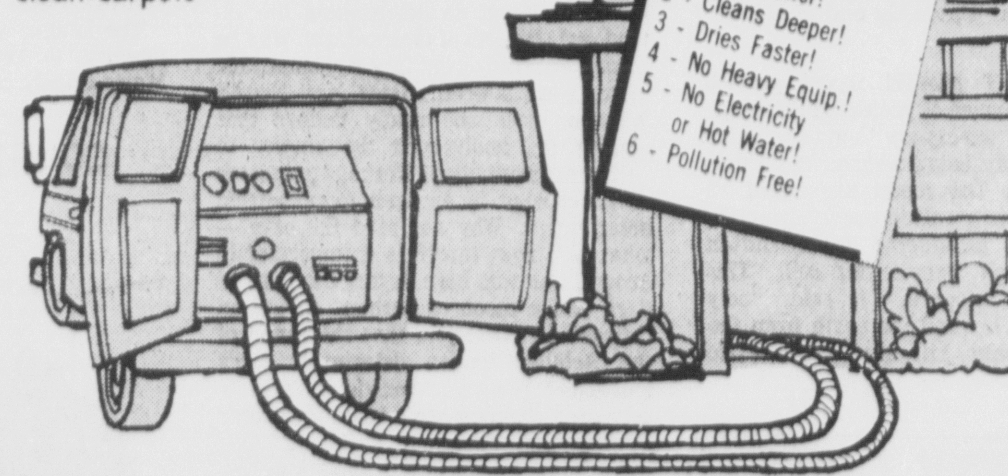

The journey between the Sun Shipbuilding Co. and the proposed New Philadelphia Electric Co. nuclear power plant in Limerick, Montgomery County, normally takes about 12 hours for heavy loads. For this load, the biggest ever of its kind, the trip is expected to take two days.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

10 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1974 EDITORIAL PAGE

State Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, has introduced a bill in the California Legislature to raise the salaries of the top seven elected state officials. It is Senate Bill 1745.

Carpenter's announced reason for the bill is that more than 50 appointed state bureaucrats now make more money than the top elected officials.

To rectify this situation, he would hike the governor's salary from $49,100 to $60,000 per year; attorney general from $42,500 to $52,155; lieutenant governor, secretary of state, controller, treasurer and superintendent of public instruction from $35,000 to $42,500. And he would apply an automatic cost-of-living, escalator to the new salaries.

"IT SIMPLY does not make sense for an employee to make more money than the person who appoints him," declared the Newport Beach senator.

We agree. It does not. But it strikes us that Senator Carpenter is going at the problem exactly backwards.

The 50-plus assorted bureaucrats (mostly in the University of California system) get higher pay than the top elected officials because the legislature enacted laws making that possible.

Raising the pay of the governor and other elected officials will not do anything about that. The bureaucrats' salaries will continue to rise. That's why Carpenter included an escalator clause in his salary increase bill.

THE INTELLIGENT approach, we suggest, would be to reduce the salaries of the bureaucrats. The legislature can do that by changing the applicable laws — just as simply as it can raise the salaries of the elected officials by enacting a new law.

You don't cure inflation by a race to hike wages and prices above those paid someone else or charged by someone else.

MEANWHILE, back in Washington, it appears that top elective officials including members of Congress will receive nice pay raises — $10,000 per year for the senators and representatives.

These raises were approved by President Nixon and are automatic unless Congress rejects them. Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, introduced a bill for their rejection. But 14 members of the House Post Office Committee kept his bill from getting out of committee by failing to show up to vote — meaning there would be no quorum.

We don't have the names of the 14. But the committee includes four Californians: Democrats Jerome R. Waldie of Concord and Charles H. Wilson of Inglewood, Republicans John R. Rousselot of Arcadia and Andrew J. Hinshaw of Mission Viejo. Voters throughout the state should be interested in learning whether Waldie, who aspires to be governor, was among the guilty. Voters in their districts ought to check on the other three.

"Think of it as a mandatory nostalgia kick."

Senate Vote On Energy Bill Lines Up Democrat Aspirants

WASHINGTON — It is tough in this winter of '74 to imagine any politician with serious national ambitions hanging back when he has a chance to get right with the voters on the issue of high fuel prices. Thus watching the Senate roll call on the emergency energy bill last Tuesday was a way of figuring a speculative early line on just how seriously the potential Democratic candidates take themselves.

The special case of George Wallace aside, there is no Democrat so far mentioned for 1976 who is not a United States senator. There are other Democrats who should be mentioned, of course, like Governors Reubin Askew of Florida, Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, Dan Walker of Illinois, John Gilligan of Ohio, and congressmen and mayors and non-politicians by the handful. But the ones who have made the list to date are all here in Washington, and the vote on the energy bill was one of those rare times when they all were physically present on the Senate floor.

THE SHOW BELONGED mainly to Henry Jackson, who ramrodded the bill to Senate passage on this third try. He has been astride the energy issue from the start, and if gasoline and propane prices are cut and "service" station lines shorten, he will be perfectly willing to accept credit ahead of his competitors.

Obviously, he voted aye. So did Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; Walter Mondale, D-Minn.; George McGovern, D-S.D.; Edmund Muskie D-Me.; and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., whose state constituencies are not all hurting equally in the fuel shortage.

But there was one Democrat who spent most of lunchtime that day discussing his openly proclaimed testing of his presidential prospects — and then went to the floor and voted against the energy bill.

He is Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas freshman who was just back from an exploratory speaking trip to the West Coast. Bentsen is smart, experienced, exceedingly well financed, increasingly respected among his Senate peers, with excellent committee assignments (Finance, Public Works, Joint Economic) and full fluency in Spanish. But he is from Texas, and so is oil. He voted nay.

THAT PUTS HIM in direct opposition to the one Democrat with whom he would have to compete head-on for support from what he calls the "moderate" backbone of the party. With Kennedy the automatic choice of the left side (plus many others) if he chooses to run, with Mondale working slightly to the liberal side of the street, with Muskie and McGovern likely in the discard pile and Wallace strong as a right-wing populist, the two who would compete for the fancied center of the party are Jackson and Bentsen.

The main difference between them is that Jackson is a four-term veteran and committee chairman who has invaluable entree to the headlines via his Senate stature — and he stood fourth among those listed in the last Gallup survey of Democratic voter preferences for 1976. (Kennedy-Wallace-Muskie ran 1-2-3, and Bentsen was nowhere.)

But Jackson is an unexciting campaigner, and in addition he will be 64 before the next presidential election. Bentsen, by contrast, is a handsome new face who beat another handsome new face named George Bush in Texas, and he will be only 55 by then.

He is solid with labor, and even has voted pro-environment when that did not conflict with his higher Texas loyalties. But when the issue was clear-cut he had to be true to Texas and vote against the energy bill, and thus put himself on the wrong side of the question in most of the rest of the country.

THAT IS SOME indication that he is more concerned about his senatorial reelection in 1976 than about coming from nowhere into presidential contention. However, there is a pertinent precedent for his situation in Texas politics. It was set in 1960 by Lyndon Johnson.

Then Senator Johnson was up for reelection at home. But he was tapped to run on the national ticket. However, he covered his bets by arranging in Austin to run to keep his Senate seat at the same time, just in case. Of course, he was on the national ticket as vice-presidential candidate, not No. 1. It is entirely possible that the Johnson precedent has not been lost on Bentsen.

10-Foot 'Bus Stop' Signs Intended To Help Myopic Man At Wheel

A fine sense of public relations never has been the forte of the Golden Gate Bridge District; it just has a wondrous knack of stepping all over its own image.

The latest gaff is its erection of a forest of shiny 10-foot bus stop poles throughout residential areas of Tiburon. Without even a pretense of notice to homeowners, the signs were planted in gardens across the community. Granted, they stand within public rights of way, but this hardly matters to infuriated property owners.

A DISTRICT SPOKESMAN said the height of the signs was "an accepted standard, nothing we made up, but a commonly used standard." He acknowledged the standard was developed over years when most bus service was in urban areas, and may not be relevant in residential suburbs.

He said the height also was designed to prevent damage from trucks and vandals, and to clear the heads of pedestrians. Pretty tall pedestals.

Particularly galling was his rebuttal to the suggestion that the bus stop signs simply be painted on the curb. Residents of the area already know very well where the buses run, especially those who live on the streets along which the coaches belch.

The spokesman admitted the signs — up to an incredible three in a single block — really were not for the riders, but so bus drivers will know where to stop. Considering that the average driver makes $19,880 a year with fringe benefits, it hardly seems too much to ask that they be trained to recognize bus stop signs that are less of a blight on the landscape.

Drivers we have met are extraordinarily pleasant and capable, and probably would stop for a group of riders even if they did not cluster around one of the silly signs.

SPEAKING OF HIGH blots, the proposed twin-tower capitol in Sacramento apparently would stand 17 stories high for a specific reason — it's the only way each of the 120 legislators can have a corner office. This intelligence came from A. Alan Hill of San Rafael, candidate for the Republican nomination in the Ninth Assembly District. He would be pleased to serve in the present capitol.

RIDES, a computer car pool matching service, figures that if only 20 per cent of the Bay Area's commuters switch from driving alone to car pools they will save 4.5 million gallons of gasoline a month. The organization estimates 1,262,000 drivers in the region consume some 31 million gallons a month just to get to and from work, at a monthly cost of $14,880,000.

A RECENT STATE report praised Marin's ordinance to protect archaeological sites as "exemplary" among similar controls slowly being adopted in California counties. The report also noted an unnamed Marin entrepreneur spent the early 1960s bulldozing local Indian mounds to sell them as top soil. "This activity was stopped," it said, "only when it was learned the earth from the mounds would kill many domestic plants."

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER
Gold is becoming so valuable in the world market that it's almost precious enough to put in your gasoline tank.

A lot of people think we already have the first step toward public financing of political campaigns: The franking privilege.

Agriculture Secretary Butz says we don't have to worry about paying $1 a loaf for bread — that story is all yeast and no flour.

There Need Be No Shortage Of Kindness

With so many of us depending upon our automobiles as a means of transportation, to and from our jobs, the gasoline shortage has created another worry for us.

One afternoon last week, driving home from work and being low on fuel, I stopped at a station where I could see many cars being serviced. I waited for about 10 minutes, when one of the attendants called out that they were closed. I asked why they didn't put up a sign. He called back for me to get my — out of there. I was stunned, but I did as he requested and got out of there, rather upset and hurt.

What I am wondering, is whatever has happened to human relations? All of us, or most of us, are under a great pressure during these trying times. Not only the gasoline shortage, but the kidnapping, the high cost of living, the trouble with our government and many more unpleasant circumstances, seemingly out of our control.

Why can't we look at each other as a fellow man? It might be wise for some of these stations carrying the sign that "service is our business" to change it to "kindness is our business." There is no price tag on this! And there should be no shortage of it, either.

Increasing Bus Service Is Up To County

For the purposes of better public understanding, I would like to comment on Mr. Kevin J. Cagari's letter which expresses the viewpoint that the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District should subsidize the operation of local Marin County bus service.

Beyond the legal ramifications, delineated in the legislation which authorized the district to provide transit services, there is the basic economic problem of the district's being unable to support strictly local service from the bridge tolls. Marin is only one of six counties in the district. If Marin were provided district subsidies for local transit, San Francisco, Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino and Del Norte Counties would want the same thing.

Local bus service within the County of Marin is funded by Marin County Transit District. Golden Gate Transit buses are used, and the cost for these buses and drivers is based upon a mileage formula. Thus, if Marin desires more local bus service, it will be necessary for the county to pay for such additional service.

Marin Coalition Seeks To Avoid Confusion

There is a new political action organization in Marin County known as Marin Coalition. Often it is referred to as "the Coalition."

As its acting director, I would like to point out that Marin Coalition is not affiliated with "the Coalition" making daily headlines in conjunction with the sensational Hearst kidnap case.

Marin Coalition is an organization which cares equally about Marin's ecology and economy. We believe in balance. We believe in compromise. We favor candidates who are open minded rather than only open space minded.

Objects To Attention To 'Lunatic Fringe'

Reference is made to the column "The Last Word" by Dorothy Newell in the Feb. 16 Independent-Journal.

What surprises me is that so much credence is given to the lunatic fringe activities. Is this to be taken seriously? It reads as though it were. Here is a girl who read a book and took some courses at a church library who is now the expert who will look at somebody's handwriting and offer career advice. What trivia! There are such things as aptitude tests for those intent on determining the extent and strength of their talents. Why be misled or misdirected by graphoanalysis. (Wow, what a word!) Does Mrs. Newell know or does she really believe that handwriting analysis is the answer to career determination? Perhaps palmistry or phrenology is an even more certain determinant. Why not read the cars — what is it now, tarot? Is it important to know if one was born during the light or dark of the moon or perhaps during an eclipse? Is it possible that the shape of the Achilles tendon determines one's longevity? Gee, that sounds esoteric — perhaps I should write a book, give some lectures and hang out a shingle. But, sorry, I don't know how to sew. However, I do think my son is creative.

Proposition 9 Better Than Existing Law

Your editorial of Feb. 6 spoke in some depth about the Common Cause sponsored Political Reform Initiative (Proposition 9) which will appear on the June ballot. You mentioned correctly that the Political Reform Act covers campaign finance reporting, financial disclosure by public officials, lobbyist regulation and select limitations on campaign spending. However, you were incorrect on two important points.

First, you said the public disclosure sections duplicate legislation passed by the California Legislature last year. This is not the case. The campaign finance disclosure law (AB 703) passed last year is much less clear and precise than Proposition 9. The financial disclosure bill (SB 716) that was passed by the legislature was "gutted" in the final days of the 1973 legislative session. It now covers only 40 per cent of the public officials who are in a position to gain financially from their official decisions. Proposition 9 includes all the important public officials and requires precise compliance.

Last year the Legislature failed to pass a lobbying disclosure measure. The existing lobbyist regulation reporting law is a farce. Proposition 9 would not only prohibit campaign donations from lobbyists, but also it would require full disclosure of lobbying activity. On all counts Proposition 9 is vastly superior to existing law.

Second, you mentioned in your editorial that while Proposition 9 covers reporting of cash contributions, "the tip of the iceberg," it does nothing about "in-kind" contributions — doorbell ringing, phoning, getting out the vote. One of the major strengths of Proposition 9 is that it requires reporting of political contributions (from lobbyists, labor union, corporations, etc.) that arrive in other forms other than cash. . . . When it goes into law, the entire iceberg will be in full view.

GOP Legislators Not Quitting In Fear Despite Watergate

Arresting a political myth: The myth is that Republican senators and congressmen are quitting politics right and left because they think Watergate will bring their defeat.

Some are retiring, but no great disproportion as between Republicans and Democrats.

Thus far six senators are not standing for re-election: three Republicans and three Democrats.

In the House, 16 Republicans and 10 Democrats are either retiring or seeking other offices. Three others have resigned to accept other positions.

Not at all a high number, far fewer than two years ago when 47 members of the House stepped down — 24 Republicans and 23 Democrats.

$17,000 For Eight-Hour Week? It's Possible In Marin County

"Help Wanted — Need responsible person, able to handle light paperwork. Guaranteed starting salary of $17,000. Five to eight-hour work week. Good fringe. Apply before March 8 at the Marin County Elections Office."

Elected positions aren't filled through classified ads, but if they were, that's how the job of county coroner might be described.

Too good to be true? Not really. Coroner Donovan O. Cooke has worked seven years to make the job what it is and plans to "reapply" with the voters for another four-year term.

WHEN DR. COOKE took office in 1967, the working conditions were hardly what they are today. He had one assistant; today he has five, not counting clerical help.

That leaves him free to keep a private medical practice going in Belvedere, even though he had campaigned to be a full-time coroner.

The county code authorizes elected department heads to set their own hours. Most of them do not appear to be taking undue advantage of the opportunity.

Dr. Cooke's average work week, however, consists of five to eight hours of paperwork, usually on Monday and Friday mornings.

For this, he receives a "half-time salary" of about $17,100 per year. That averages out at about $53 per hour, not including health insurance, retirement and other fringe benefits.

The exception to his schedule is when there is a case of some notoriety. Then Dr. Cooke becomes involved.

Other than that, the coroner's office kind of runs on automatic pilot, with Cooke's aides carrying the load.

Dr. Cooke is conscious of his public image. No one in his office — except himself, of course — is to be quoted by reporters. Unfortunately he's not around very often to be quoted.

Hence, when reporters need information, his deputies will give it but only with the understanding it is to be attributed to Dr. Cooke or to "the coroner's office."

ELSEWHERE AROUND CIVIC Center, Supervisor Robert Roumiguere "loaned $5 and some advice" last week to a young man who had just been turned down for general relief welfare.

The advice was to get a job. "That's the last you'll see of that $5," someone said later.

"He'll pay it back when he can," Roumiguere replied.

On Friday, the young man returned the $5 to Roumiguere, saying he had found a job.

Pentagon Spy Testimony Weighed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Armed Services Committee is weighing conflicting testimony about Pentagon spying on the White House and about the role of the nation's top military man, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer.

The outcome could affect Moorer's chances to be reappointed by President Nixon for a third consecutive two-year term as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. His present term is up in December.

The committee is expected to release more testimony on the subject this week—in the form of Q-and-A interrogations—and that might clarify apparent conflicts in written statements so far released.

Moorer's testimony thus far appeared to conflict with that of Yeoman Charles Radford, a Navy stenographer at the White House who says he purloined for the Pentagon White House papers on a 1971 trip by Henry Kissinger to Peking, and with that of Adm. Robert O. Welander who ran the Pentagon liaison office in the White House.

In a letter to committee chairman Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., Moorer said documents he received were of little interest to him, implying he did not seek them.

"To the best of my memory, based upon a very brief exposure, these papers dealt primarily with the military and political situation and discussions taking place during the trip—matters with which I was already familiar," Moorer wrote.

Welander said he selected a number of critical documents from those collected by Radford aboard Kissinger's plane, wrote a cover memorandum and personally took it to Moorer. He said the chairman looked at one document and scanned the others, implying more than cursory attention was paid the papers.

Yeoman Radford said Welander asked him to procure a copy of the agenda for a National Security Council meeting at San Clemente, Calif., at which Kissinger announced to senior officials his success on the China mission.

Radford said Welander took the agenda copy from him, walked into an adjoining room where Moorer was waiting, presumably showed it to him, and later offered profuse thanks to Radford for having let Moorer know what was going to happen in the meeting before it began.

Kissinger was then President Nixon's senior staff aide on national security, but not yet secretary of state.

The New York Times said in its editions yesterday that President Nixon personally overruled prosecution of suspects in the spying incident in order to keep it quiet. Times reporter Seymour M. Hersh said sources described Nixon as "extremely angry" when he heard of the spying but felt that trials of those involved could spark a national scandal and compromise national security interests. Presidential Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler declined comment on the Times report.

Moratorium On Townhouses On Council Agenda

The Novato City Council will consider extending a moratorium on processing of townhouses and apartment projects at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Novato Community House.

The breeze was started last October and originally expired Feb. 2. It was extended to March 4 and councilmen will decide if another extension is needed.

The council also will have a public hearing on two controversial items, a suggestion to abandon plans for a railroad crossing at Sweetser Avenue and a proposed ordinance to ban "oversized vehicles" from overnight parking on residential streets.

Agency Receives $30,000 Grant

The Family Service Agency of Marin has received a $30,000 grant to teach "specially selected students" counseling and leadership skills.

The money, presented by the Rosenberg Foundation of San Francisco, will finance an 18-month project for students at San Rafael, Terra Linda and Novato high schools.

The program, called SHOULDERS, will be directed by David J. Troxell.

HERE'S HEALTH!

HEALTH AND BEAUTY NEED GOOD NUTRITION

Our leading fashion magazines continue to emphasize good nutrition for health and beauty purposes. Vogue, for example, lists facts about hair care. Included are suggestions such as: eat sufficient protein. Otherwise, hair will deteriorate and lose color. And make certain of getting vitamins C, E and the B complex.

Pantothenic acid encourages hair growth and strength, says the article. But lack of it could lead to falling hair and breaking nails. And herb infusions are recommended. Chamomile for dry, thin hair, rosemary for normal to oily. "Natural health" authorities who've been writing like this for years must be delighted to find themselves in such good company these days.

Mineral, Oil Discoveries Promise Ireland Wealth

By JONATHAN HARSCH

DUBLIN, Ireland — The Republic of Ireland could be transformed from Europe's poorest, least-developed country into the one having the highest per capita gross national product.

That's been the prospect since unexpected ore finds three years ago showed that Ireland has the largest known zinc and lead deposits in Europe, along with substantial silver and copper resources.

Already two very rich operating mines, Silvermines and Tynagh, and two marginal mines, Avoca and Gortdrum, make the Irish Republic a major producer.

WHEN MINING BEGINS for the far larger Navan deposits, discovered by but not yet granted to Northgate Tara Exploration of Canada, Ireland will become Europe's leading ore supplier — as it was in 1200 B.C. when the Mycenaean Greeks traded with Ireland.

Natural gas discoveries off the southeast coast last autumn also brought new promises of wealth. These finds should supply all Irish needs with plenty to spare. Seismic surveys indicate that major offshore oil deposits are linked to the natural gas fields.

Marathon Oil and Esso, which sank more than $30 million in exploratory drilling before making the gas find, are stepping up operations and investment. A long line of other oil companies are ready to drill the moment the Irish government grants licenses.

THE IMPRESSION that only bureaucratic red tape holds back instant wealth brings the Irish government under fire from all quarters.

Impatient mining and oil interests charge the government with incompetence. These charges multiplied in September when the government abruptly ended its 20-year tax holiday granted to mining companies in 1967 to encourage foreign investment.

Mining magnates darkly warned government ministers that withdrawing such concessions could drive away essential foreign capital.

Despite such threats, the Irish government five months later has not granted further exploration licenses. And on Feb. 6 Finance Minister Richie Ryan introduced a parliamentary bill "to amend the law in relation to the taxation of profits of certain mines." But, with embarrassment, he admitted the bill has not yet been drafted.

The main argument for delay is that Ireland could become the North Atlantic's largest and dirtiest offshore drilling platform. Already there are plans to build five major oil refineries here. The yield could be fantastic for international mining and oil interests — while leaving Ireland a smoking slag heap.

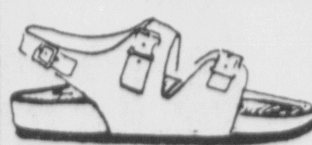

SIMPLY PUMPING the oil out of the ground would produce relatively little for Ireland.

Instead, a coordinated drive by Irish government agencies aims at building up Irish industries to supply the many needs of the mining and oil drilling operations.

Ireland can provide fully equipped supply bases for the major international operations. This entails investment in harbors, warehousing, office space, living accommodations, helicopter support, heavy transport, communication facilities, a labor force, and such basic supplies as concrete.

Supply-base projects are under way.

The government aim is to ensure that a full 20 per cent of the offshore oil industry's total drilling costs is spent in Ireland.

Minimum Hourly Wage Going Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The minimum hourly wage for Californians advances to $2 starting a week from today and could mean extra money in the pockets of as many as 3 million workers.

For the first time, men and household domestic workers will be given the benefit of state wage standards.

Employers have not received official orders yet to implement the increase from the present $1.65 because of "unavoidable" delays, but the state Industrial Welfare Division advises them to relax, the forms are being mailed out this week.

The new rate will put California further ahead of the federal government's $1.60 minimum, and make the state No. 3 in the nation behind the District of Columbia's $2.46 and Alaska's $2.10.

The state says nearly 7 million workers will come under the new minimum wage provisions, of a total workforce of 8.5 million. It is difficult to determine how many now earn less than $2 and therefore can expect a raise.

Second Volume Due
MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — The second volume of Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn's work, "The Gulag Archipelago," will be published in German in the autumn or winter at the earliest, the Scherz publishing house said today.

"A substantial number," estimates Industrial Welfare Commissioner Stanton D. Elliott of Eureka.

"I'd say 2.5 million to 3 million, easily," says fellow Commissioner Edward M. Curren of Canoga Park.

But commission Chairman Theodore J. Todd says the impact "won't be much" because inflation has pushed wages of many workers up near the $2 mark.

The wage boost and the extension of state minimum wage benefits to men were authorized by the legislature in 1972. Previously, most men were covered by federal minimum wage laws.

California last raised its minimum wage in 1968 from $1.30 to $1.65. The state established a minimum wage in 1916—16 cents an hour.

Primarily benefiting from the new wage level will be youths, farm workers, employees of small retail shops, workers in the hotel-motel and recreation industries, students, waitresses and domestics.

Exceptions to the $2 minimum are minors, adults learning a job for the first time and students, who will be paid no less than $1.70, up from the current level of $1.35.

Farm workers paid on the basis of how much they pick will come under the state minimum wage for the first time. The law requires at least 60 per cent of the field hands at any one farm to be paid the hourly equivalent of $2 or more, with the remaining 20 per cent required to receive at least $1.70.

The agricultural minimums are less for piece-work laborers between ages 12 and 18.

Persons working split-shifts will receive an extra $2 per day.

Exempt altogether from minimum wage standards are persons working for family-run businesses or farms having less than five employees.

The new wage level is only the first sweeping change in labor laws that Californians can expect in March.

Under the same 1972 legislation which authorized the wage increases, the Industrial Welfare Commission was assigned to establish new regulations for working conditions and working hours in the state.

The standards are scheduled for release during the middle of the month.

Traffic Decreases On Five Toll Spans

Traffic decreased during January on five of the eight state toll bridges, including the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, according to the Department of Transportation.

Traffic between Marin and the East Bay dropped 1.7 per cent, from 607,846 vehicles in January of 1973 to 597,679 in the first month of 1974.

Pier Contract Is Awarded

Directors of the Inverness Association have awarded a contract to Lance Brown to replace piers at Brock's Boathouse and to build a wharf for the structure.

Work is to be completed within 45 days after the piers are in place, at a cost of not more than $5,000, according to director Alan Johnstone.

The old boathouse, and Inverness landmark, was purchased by association members several years ago and will be used as a public fishing pier, Johnstone said.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The confirmed death toll in the sinking of a South Korean navy tug rose to 113 today, and 46 men were still missing, the navy announced.

Youngster's Plea Before Council

The San Anselmo City Council will consider appointing 12-year-old Atha Mathieu to the city parks and recreation commission when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

The youngster is seeking appointment to the commission because she believes local children do not have adequate representation on city agencies.

The council will also consider adoption of an ordinance limiting smoking in places of public assembly. The measure is being proposed by Councilman Martin G. Blinder.

New Service Solves Problem Of Singles

By JOAN LISETOR
If you don't like going to bars and you have struck out at singles organizations how can you meet members of the opposite sex?
Barbara Austin of San Anselmo returned recently from a tour of Europe with an answer. Two weeks ago she started the Executive Singles Director of Marin, patterned after services she saw in Europe.
With the help of friends she compiled a list of executive and professional single men and women. A letter was sent asking them to call her if they were interested in enriching their lives.
"Response to the letter was so good I had to hire an answering service the second day," said Mrs. Austin, herself recently divorced.

Of the men and women who call most make appointments to talk with her, she said.
THEY TALK about what she has to offer — a dating service, which will in a few months become a directory. The client also tells Mrs. Austin about himself and what he is seeking.
"I don't accept everyone," she said. "The service caters to the upper echelon, the person who is looking for something extra, be it a high academic or social level. But mostly I am serving people who relate to people."
A warm person herself, Mrs.

Austin puts her client at ease. The average interview takes about an hour, she said, and there is no obligation to join.
"We talk about what is happening in the person's life — good and bad — their goals and what kind of person interests them," she explained.
"Some women are very specific, and the older they are, the more broad-minded. The mature woman is not looking for a millionaire on a white charger to carry her off to Paris, but most young women say they are looking for someone tall, good looking and wealthy."
When she finds a man and a woman who fit one another's descriptions, she tells each about the other. If both are interested she gives the telephone number to the man — unless the woman insists on making the call, she said.

WHEN THE singles directory comes out in April or May each client will receive a copy, with additions to follow every two months. No names, addresses or telephone numbers will be in the directory. Each person will have a code number.
"If you go through the directory and someone looks interesting, call me," she explained. "I'll tell that person your code number, and if he is interested, give him the name and telephone number. If he isn't interested, the rejection will be her in the office, and I will handle it so no one is let down."
The clients she has turned down have been men who are looking for one night stands and people who are not "together."
The ones she has accepted are looking for a good relationship — not just a date, but not a promise of marriage either, she said.

"There is no shame in looking for a good relationship, and there are no desperate people, only people who are tired of making the rounds of bars and tired of sleeping around," she said.
For those who dread blind dates, she said, "Imagine the ice breaker. You go out and you already have a lot to talk about — the service."
Her service differs from computer dating services, she said, because you can lie to a computer and say anything.

"I TALK to people and we build up trust and feelings. Can you have rapport with a computer?" she asked.
Asked if she dates any of the men she interviews, Mrs. Austin replied, "I never mix business with pleasure but I tell my friends, 'Now if Rock Hudson walked through the door...'"

ON THE AGENDA

Concert Pianist Will Play At Outdoor Art Club's Guest Tea

Concert pianist Janet Graham Dewing will give a program for the Outdoor Art Club guest tea at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Mill Valley clubhouse.

The pianist has performed in the music centers on three continents. A graduate of Mills College in Oakland, she received much of her musical training in Germany, where she studied with the late Arthur Schnabel. Janet Dewing made her professional debut in Berlin under the sponsorship of the American Embassy.

Married to Andrew S. Dewing, the pianist is a resident of Kentfield. She will present a program of the works of Bach, Schubert and Chopin for the club.

Mrs. Wayne Speckmann is program chairman. Mmes. Roy A. Carlsen and Michael Amoro- so are tea chairmen; and Mmes. Vaughn McGuire, Ervin Cox, Ernest Brymer, Robert Morgan, William Niedecker, and Phillip Welchman, will assist.

Mmes. Bruce Wrisley, Francis B. Bostel, Robert Andresen, and Warren Steiger are tea table hostesses, and Mmes. Thomas Smiley, Clifton Craig and James Patterson are on the greeting committee.

RALPH MEROLA, head of the newly formed Department of Corrections for Marin County, will speak at the Broaden Your Horizons luncheon of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin tomorrow. The luncheon will be held at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 1180 Lynwood Drive, Novato, starting at 11:30 a.m.

Merola will speak on "Philosophy, Implementation and Problems Facing the Program."

Reservations and child care arrangements chairman is Nancy Howe of Novato.

THE PETALUMA Newcomers Club fashion show and election of officers will be held Thursday at the Petaluma Woman's Clubhouse in Petaluma. Champagne punch will be served at 11:30 a.m., followed by the luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

Fourth Rug Lecture Set

Fourth of the series of six lectures on Oriental rugs will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m., with Dr. Robert Roalfe, owner of an Oriental rug business in San Francisco, speaking on no-mad and village rugs.

The series, sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association as a fund-raising event, will be held at the Tamalpais Retirement Center, 501 Via Casitas, Greenbrae.

The public may attend individual weekly lectures or the series. Registration is available at the door, announced Mrs. Jerome Mednick, publicity chairman for the association.

The programs will continue weekly through March 13.

Stitchery Faire Dates Announced

Dates for the Fourth Annual Stitchery Faire have been announced as May 3 through May 5 by the sponsoring Planned Parenthood Association of Marin Auxiliary.

The Faire will be held at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley, and exhibited works will be judged, announced Susan Bowman, press chairman for the auxiliary.

JANET GRAHAM DEWING

and the program. Alice Walker of Petaluma is reservations chairman.

A WELCOMING tea for new members will be given by the Marin Association for Mental Health Auxiliary Thursday at 2 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. William K. Ehrenfeld in Tiburon. Reservations are taken by the Marin Association for Mental Health office in San Rafael for persons interested.

ALTERNATIVE SCHOOLS in the San Rafael High School District will be the topic for the Terra Linda High School Parent-Teacher Association meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria.

A staff member and student from each of the four alternative schools, Lagnaf, Madrone, Nexus and Pacific Crest, will speak, according to Dick Conner, P-TA president.

TAMAR CHAPTER and B'Nai B'rith Women of Marin County members will attend the "B'Nai B'rith Women in Fashion" donor luncheon and show at noon Wednesday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in San Francisco.

The fashions will be modeled by women from 22 chapters in the Bay Area. Special guests will be Dianne Feinstein, chairman of the San Francisco County board of supervisors; and Mrs. Leon Krasner, president of District 4, B'Nai B'rith Women, a Jewish service organization whose community projects are non-sectarian.

THE LUCAS Valley Home and School Club will hear "America's Pie King," A. Bumleberry Compton speak at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the school in Lucas Valley. Compton will describe "Love in a Pie Shell" and serve slices of pie to members and students of the 4th through 6th grades attending.

Money Columnist On Special Duty

Consumer columnist Josephine Ripley, who writes the Money Matters column each Monday in the Independent-Journal women's section, is devoting full time to a special assignment for the Christian Science Monitor News Service.

Her column will resume in the Independent-Journal when her assignment is terminated.

Soap Is Safe

You needn't hesitate to use soap you find in public washrooms. Even if it looks grimy, you're not going to transfer anybody else's germs onto your hands by using it. Germs don't thrive on soap. Just rinse off the surface and go right ahead with your hand washing.

BARBARA AUSTIN of San Anselmo came back from Europe recently with an idea on how to get together single men and women who are looking for meaningful relationships. Patterning her service after things she saw in Europe, Mrs. Austin has started Singles Directory of Marin.

Mrs. Deane President Of Peacock Gap Guild

Mrs. Dudley Deane of San Rafael has been elected president of the Peacock Gap Guild of Sunny Hills.

Ginny Deane and her husband, an income property owner and developer, have lived in Marin for 12 years. She is a former member of the board of the Marin Ballet Association and chairman of the "Nutcracker" production for the association, and a member of the Peacock Gap Golf Club and Peacock Gap Garden Club.

She said the guild plans a fund-raising dinner in March and a sale of Christmas cards and stationery in the fall to support the Sunny Hills home in San Anselmo.

Other new officers of the guild are Mmes. James Kennedy, vice president; Russell Westover, recording secretary; Charles Bock, corresponding secretary; and William Bowersock, treasurer.

Panel Aimed At Children Of Elderly

The Family Service Agency of Marin will have a workshop Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. for the sons and daughters of elderly parents. The workshop will be held in the educational center of the First Baptist Church, 1411 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Chairman will be Esther C. Whitman, Family Service Agency consultant on aging.

A panel will discuss the effects of retirement, what happens to the elderly parent living in his son's or daughter's home, elderly persons living alone, the abuse of medicines and the resources available in Marin County.

Panelists will be Helen Callbeck, specialist in health and aging for the Department of Public Social Services; Diane Ford, field representative for the Social Security administration; Dr. J. Lyman Hurlburt, retired physician; Dr. Ralph Jacobs, general practitioner; Florence Vickery, instructor at Emeritus College; and Miss Whitman.

Advance registration can be made by calling the Family Service Agency.

Two Trade Vows In Museum Chapel

Lisa Mazzina became the bride of Michael D. Bridges of San Rafael at a ceremony at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Landmark Society Museum chapel in Tiburon.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Mazzina of San Rafael, Lisa was attended by her sister Betsy Mazzina of San Rafael as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Linda Spadoni of Oakdale, Sarah Melson of Novato, and Kathy Kovaleff of Larkspur.

Kevin Bridges of San Rafael performed best man duties for his brother. Guests were seated by Lisa's brother Tim Mazzina of San Rafael, Don Melson of Novato and Gary Garvin of San Rafael.

The reception was held afterward at Temple Rodef Shalom hall in San Rafael. The couple left on a wedding trip to the Bahamas and will live in Novato.

Lisa is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is employed at Pacific Gas Transmission Co. in San Francisco.

She is the sister of Barbara Loudin of Pacifica and the granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Mazzina of San Rafael and Mrs. Joseph Kazik of Green Bay, Wis.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bowen A. Bridges of San Rafael. He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and is employed by the City of Larkspur.

He is the brother of Mrs. Charles Sloan and Mrs. William Sousa, both of Petaluma, and Mrs. Eric Christensen of Portland, Ore. Mr. and Mrs. Bart Rolph of Grass Valley are his grandparents.

Karen Nancy Rosenthal Is Engaged

The engagement of Karen Nancy Rosenthal to David Richard Guasco of Kentfield has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt L. Rosenthal of San Rafael.

A graduate of San Rafael High School and the College of Marin, Karen is attending California State University, San Francisco, working toward an elementary teaching credential. She is also employed by Livingston's in San Rafael.

She is the sister of Terry L. Rosenthal of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mrs. Julius Donner of San Francisco.

David is the son of Mrs. Patricia Cabella of Greenbrae and Peter J. Guasco of San Anselmo. He is the brother of Phil, Jeff, Terri, Laurie, Cheryl and Robin Guasco and is the stepbrother of Andrea Kutulas, Tony, Jay, Elise, Steven, Christina and Michelle Cabella.

He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Fleckenstien of Glen Ellen and Mrs. Felice Guasco of Kentfield.

David is a graduate of Redwood High School and the College of Marin and a senior at CSU, San Francisco.

The couple plans to be married June 16.

Darkened Food

Darkening of food at the top of a jar can be caused by oxidation due to air in the jars or by too little heating or processing to destroy enzymes. If pears, apples and peaches turn pink and blue, it's probably a chemical change in the fruits' coloring.

Kimberly®

KIMBERLY KNITS an unmistakable classic. This self-assured pure wool suit with a watercolor patterned polyester shirt can be simply described in one word. Elegant. From its wealth of detailing to its slender silhouette it is an ensemble you will just love to wear.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTLE

He Wants Strength Enough To Stay Split From Spoiled Brat

DEAR HELEN:
My wife treated me like dirt. I was crazy about her, so I took it — for four years. I worked 10 hours a day, came home and cleaned house, did the cooking, and gave her whatever she wanted. She still carped about everything. Finally she went out on me — just for kicks, she said.

Don't get the idea I'm a pantywaist. Our love life was great, but she figured that was enough to make up for all the other lacks. Even her mother admits she's a spoiled brat.

Well, I left her once. She begged me to come back; said she couldn't live without me. I tried again. Same thing. She ran our charge accounts up and me down.

So I've moved out again, and now she calls every night, crying and promising she'll be a different woman. She is very persuasive and I'm lonely.

Please help me stay strong enough not to go back! — TEMPTED

DEAR TEMPTED:
Keep in mind that spoiled, immature women view their husbands as the born-rich see their bank accounts: they only become important when they're suddenly no longer there.

Your wife has pretty well proved she can't or won't change. Don't sink for the third time! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Thanks for pulling me up short! I felt like the writer who signed herself, "For Mid-Lib": I was "finished" at age 58.

After reading your answer, I did some heavy reevaluation, and learned there was a good deal of life left in this shell. I've joined a singles dance group (I'm a widow), started bowling again, I'm planning a cruise in April, and I've already got a nice widower interested enough to invite me out.

How true: it's your attitude, not your age, that counts! — GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL:
There's a quip that goes, "I'm at the awkward age: too young for Medicare and too old for men-to-care." Thanks for proving it false! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I lost my husband to the bottle when he became an alcoholic. Now, I've lost him to the man who got him off liquor. They're inseparable. They go everywhere together because, as my husband says, they give each other strength to stay dry. They went on the wagon at the same time, a year ago, and since then I've been lonelier than ever.

On the few occasions we go out, this man tags along. Most-

Janice Mary Greaves Is Married To John Shearman In Louisiana

Janice Mary Greaves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Greaves of Novato, was married to John Thomas Shearman at Church of the Good Shepherd in Lake Charles, La., on Feb. 14.

Janice chose Mrs. Charles

Loddell of Lake Charles as her matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Kathy Jackson of New Orleans and Nancy Shearman of Lake Charles.

Robert Searle of New York was best man, and ushers were Bill Shearman of New Orleans and Walker Shearman of Lake Charles, brothers of the bridegroom; and Dickie Wicks, Lake Charles, and Robert Emmett, who returned from Sweden for the wedding, and David Greaves of Novato, brother of the bride.

The reception was held at the home of Mrs. Ada Shearman in Lake Charles. The couple went on a wedding trip to Florida and will live in Colorado.

The bride was graduated from Marymount International, Kingston, England, and the American College of Switzerland in Leysin. Her grandmother is Mrs. Grace Wonder of Seattle, Wash.

The bridegroom is the son of Hugh Shearman and Mrs. Ada Shearman, both of Lake Charles. He was graduated from Southern Methodist Uni-

IMPROVE YOUR BEAUTY

Reducers Given Answers To Often-Asked Questions

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate
(Tenth in a series of 15 articles.)

This is the third week of my eight-week Beauty Improvement Plan. I am using the space to answer some questions reducers most often ask me. I think these answers will be helpful to those of you who are following the plan. Those who have not started, but plan to do so, will be interested, too.

Q. When and how often should I weigh when losing weight?

A. In this matter people are almost as individual as their fingerprints. It depends on the type person you are. If you are going to be discouraged if you do not lose a few pounds immediately after beginning to diet then never weigh more often than once a week. Several days may pass before the scales suddenly show a happy loss of a few pounds. I guess once a week is best for most folks.

However, many readers have told me that they never successfully lost weight until they recorded their progress on a wall chart. You weigh every day and then draw a line between present weight and that of the day before. In this way you can see your weight line go up or down and take any necessary measures immediately.

If the line keeps going straight across the chart, you know that you must be more faithful with your diet. If it goes up, it scares the wits out of you! Some people need to have this visual impact in order to succeed.

The time to weigh is in the morning in the nude, after going to the bathroom. If you do not have scales at home be sure to weigh each time on the same one and in clothes of the same weight (the same clothes are safer).

Q. Does it make any difference when I do my exercises?

Pancake Supper

The Senior and Junior Youth groups of the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley will give a pancake supper tomorrow, Shrove Tuesday, at 6 p.m. in Hammond Hall, the church parish hall.

A. No. Fit them into your routine when it suits you best except do them about three hours after eating. Individuals differ in their reaction to exercise. It stimulates some and relaxes others. Many people sleep better following it while others want to go dancing. Do whatever fits in best to your habits, physiology and temperament.

Q. When I tried to reduce before I did just fine, lost ten pounds and then I stopped losing even though I counted my calories just the same. That's when I gave up. What happened?

A. This is called a "plateau" and is an expected part of reducing. Do not let it discourage you this time. Keep on dieting and the scales will soon give you happy news again.

Mrs. Martin Taking Training

Mrs. Anne Martin of Mill Valley is in New York City on a nine-month training program with the Episcopal Church Army.

On completion of the training course, she will spend 18 months of internship in the field, and be prepared for church work wherever she is assigned. Often this preparation enables trainees to be leaders in community service.

Mrs. Martin, a longtime Mill Valley resident, has three grown children. For the past two years she has worked in the church school at the Church of Our Saviour, Mill Valley.

Applications Open For Scholarships

Applications for $100 scholarships given by the Marin Panhellenic Association will be available to Marin County senior girls from Marin high schools next week.

Senior girls who plan to attend four year colleges or universities at which national sororities are represented may apply for the scholarships, according to Betty Celia, Panhellenic president. Winners will be selected on the basis of their overall high school performance, she said.

Roxanne Gail Brodien Wed To Andre Robert Horn Jr.

Roxanne Gail Brodien of Larkspur and Andre Robert Horn Jr. of Corte Madera were married Feb. 17 afternoon at St. Patrick's Church in Larkspur.

Mrs. Ernest Renner of Corte Madera, the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were the bride's sister Mrs. Kenneth Van Der Slice of San Rafael, Mrs. Carlo Palombi of San Rafael, also Andre's sister; Sonja and Vicci Horn of Corte Madera, Roxanne's sisters; and Mrs. Philip Magee of Ignacio.

Philip Horn of San Rafael served his brother as best man.

Guests were seated by Gregory Horn of Corte Madera, another brother; Ernest Renner of Corte Madera, Carlo Palombi of San Rafael, Angelo Lancelotti of San Anselmo and Felix Arami of Granada.

Roxanne is the daughter of Mrs. GERALD Dean Sutton Brodien of Larkspur and Bernard B. Brodien of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Now employed by the Giftique in San Anselmo, she was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended the College of Marin.

Andre is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Robert Horn of Corte Madera. He was graduated from Redwood High School,

ART REVIEW

Sculptures Are Dynamic

By ADA GARFINKEL
Gayle Luchessa's woven and coiled sculptures at Dominican College's San Marco Gallery are full of dynamic energy.

Mrs. Luchessa attributes their primitive vitality and organic forms to her own direct and intuitive approach to her work, and to her relationship to nature and natural forms.

She says: "The creation and exploration of forms is stimulating and exciting, an awakening process from onset to completion; each piece taking form by the hand, the eye, and the mind."

The artist uses no preliminary sketches, nor does she use armatures as supports. She works with a warp-weighted loom, the open end allowing her to mold and shape the forms. Several of her newer sculptures are worked in basketry coil.

The forms retain their own shape, seeming to grow out of each other. And it is the materials she selects before starting that stimulates the development of each piece.

Her sensibility to her materials: hemp, fiber, linen, cotton, wool, horsehair, and odd bits of fabric, governs tension and slack. Also the give-and-take of form, shape, pattern, or design, and the interrelationship of all of these.

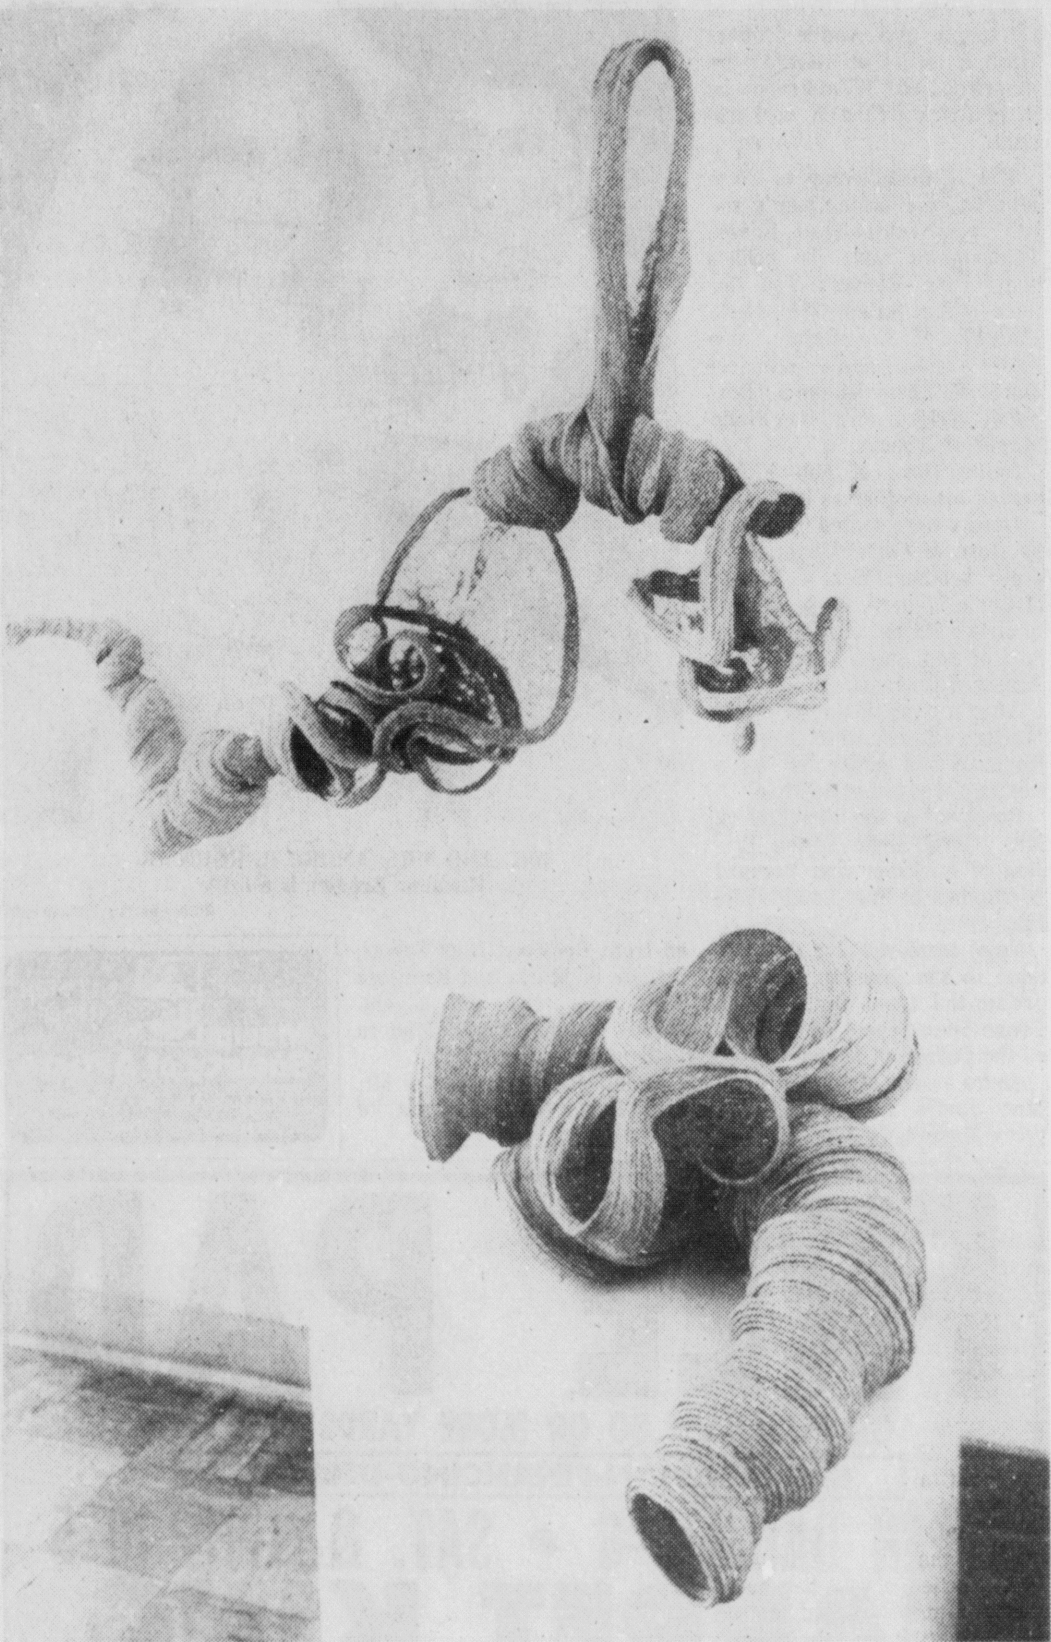

The show's most evocative and dynamic works are the space-thrusting two-part "Space Meanderings," and the three part "Fiber Forms."

Both are of basket-coiled hemp held in shape by thin brass and copper wire strands, which create blip-like rhythms as they outline the undulating organic forms.

Fillagreed webs of crocheted brass wire fill yawning gaps in "Space Meanderings," and a 20-foot tubular length of crocheted copper wire an inch in diameter, coils at the feet of "Fiber Forms."

Moods of quietness and introspection are suggested by the all-white "Shell-Innerspace Reality" in its Japanese sand-garden setting. Resembling a hollowed-out, gigantic mushroom, its inner cellular-like protrusions rise and fall gently.

"Mayan Tumulus" is an unusual adaptation using two large, softly-woven baskets of muted green fiber which are laid on their sides, back-to-back to resemble characteristic mound formations.

SPACE MEANDERINGS — This two-part fiber-and-brass-coiled sculpture thrusting its serpentine forms into space is included in Gayle Luchessa's show of woven and coiled sculptures at Dominican College in San Marco Gallery and Alemany Library.

The tall, columnar "Portrait," the bristly "Phoenix," the humorous bota-like "Continuing Coil," and the elegant "White-on-White" — the latter a wall-hanging — are each provocative in its own way.

It would be a mistake not to see Mrs. Luchessa's small, fantasy-inspired "Dr. Suess Baskets" in the Alemany Library wall cases, a few doors from the gallery. One may also see there, samples of her works in program which had begun admirably.

In honor of Handel's 289th birthday a spritely number from "Solomon," the Entrance of the Queen of Sheba, summoned up the Baroque age in miniature, strings, oboes, and harpsichord in cheerful accord.

Soprano Marie Gibson sang three songs by Purcell with the disarming directness that makes those florid extensions of simple English words so very appealing. Certainly if any song could "all your cares beguile," it would be "Music for awhile." The humor of "What can we poor females do?" and the stately charm of "If music be the food of love" came across prettily consistently in diction, always with a feeling of breath to spare.

Walter Subke (flute), Eleanor Duste (oboe), and Erika Matthes (harpsichord) played the only modern work of the evening, Gordon Jacob's trio, with great zest, imagination and rapport. Strangely resonant slow chords on the keyboard, lively and accurate duetting between oboe and flute, tinsel gleam from the piccolo in the last movement were among the stylish and polished things in this performance.

(An unlisted Rossini piece turned out to be a Duet for Two Cats, i.e., Miss Gibson and bass Robert Bernard, who sang and hissed and clawed like true Italian felines.)

The major undertaking in the second half of the program, Haydn's string quartet in B-flat, opus 76 ("The Sunrise"), may have been ragged here and there but on the plus side were some lush blendings in the adagio, skillful passing around of melody segments at high speed and softly, an overall freedom from noisy "digging-in" sounds. It was a tender and gracious thing at its best. William Pynchon and Donna Salari (violins), Asbjorn Finess (viola), and Teressa Adams (cello) formed the quartet, and were, in various groupings, performing most of the evening.

An Albinoni oboe concerto, a clarinet quartet by von Winter, and a comic-character aria by Lortzing rounded out the over-long program, examples of the amiable, the slight, the beer-gardenly, and creditably brought off by their respective soloists: Raymond Duste, Frealon Bibbins, and Mr. Bernard.

The deliberate informality of this series, coupled with easily preventable accidents of staging on this occasion may seem a liability to those who distinguish between the amusing and the silly.

progress and some of the materials used by the artist in the developing stage.

This exhibit will continue through March 14, and may be seen Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Electric Problems Mar Concert

By EMILY J. ROSS
At Del Mar School, where the Bach-to-Mozart group presented the fourth concert of this season's series last night, all sorts of nonmusical things went wrong, provoking merry laughter from a medium-large audience attuned to the humor of musicians having the wrong music, music-lamps not working at all or going on and off like morse-code blinkers.

The joke wore a little thin when the technical problems unsettled some of the players, marring the second half of a

Prime Ministers Kiss, Make Up

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI) — At an outdoor reception at the end of the three-day Islamic summit conference the prime ministers of Pakistan and Bangladesh kissed and made up.

In the most dramatic of the summit, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan and Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh kissed on a balcony before a cheering crowd.

Col. Moammar Khadafy of Libya also was well received by the invited guests at the reception in the Shalimar Gardens. He was besieged by requests for his autograph and willingly obliged.

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel today returned 56 Egyptian prisoners of war captured in flareups following the Oct. 24 cease-fire, the military command said.

Stolen Painting Said Worth $2.3 Million

LONDON (UPI) — Art thieves used a sledge hammer to smash through an ironbarred window at Kenwood House museum and steal a painting by Jan Vermeer valued at more than $2.3 million, the building's owners reported.

The intruders cut telephone wires to the building Saturday night and broke in while the night watchman was on the floor above. In a matter of minutes they had seized the oil painting "The Guitar Player," a spokesman for the Greater London Council said.

"The gang seemed to know what they wanted and went for it," he added.

The Greater London Council owns the building near London's Hampstead Heath.

The stolen painting measures 20 inches by 18 inches and shows a girl playing a guitar. Kenwood House curator John Jacob said it was very difficult to estimate its value as Vermeers only rarely go on the market. But the council spokesman gave the $2.3 million estimate and said the painting was "one of about 30 Vermeers in the world."

Pill Bottle Directions Not Easily Understood

CHICAGO (UPI) — Labels on pill bottles don't always tell like they should, the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

The magazine said its studies of prescriptions reading, Take three times a day, with meals, "is ambiguous because the instructions do not tell whether the tablets should be taken before, during or after the meal.

Yet, it makes a difference when the pills are taken, since some are intended to be consumed on a full stomach and others on an empty stomach to facilitate absorption.

The article cited a study made at a hospital in Rochester, N. Y., in which 67 patients were asked to interpret instructions on each of 10 prescription labels.

"Not once was a label uniformly interpreted by all patients," the study found.

The article said results of the study "illustrate the need for physicians to provide the medication instructions that are consistent with the patient's daily activities and to review these instructions with the patient."

Patients also were advised to ask their doctors to clarify instructions and to avoid guesswork for best results.

Welfare Cheater Sentenced

A woman who pleaded guilty to welfare fraud totaling $2,864 has been ordered to pay the money back, pay a $500 fine and spend 45 days in Marin County Jail.

Fanny E. Keppard, 40, of no known address, also was placed on five years probation last week by Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court.

Court records show Mrs. Keppard received $1,862 in aid to families with dependent children, $159 in food stamps and $783 in Medi-Cal benefits between 1970 and 1972.

Although she claimed to be unemployed, she actually worked part of the time and collected unemployment insurance at other times, according to a probation report.

Best also ordered Mrs. Keppard to perform 240 hours of volunteer work, and declared the offense a misdemeanor.

Birchers Still Active, Less Noisy

By MARY LEYDECKER

Cookies and coffee, speakers and filmstrips, phone calls and mailings, sales and solicitations — every volunteer in an endless number of Marin organizations can chant the litany.

And the members of the John Birch Society are no exception.

They, too, spend hours at the same kind of activities that fill the days of the neighborhood church groups, the outdoor faniers clubs and the local dog-dog chapters.

"We're all volunteers together," a woman member said cheerfully, as she gathered up tracts and books at the society's bookstore in San Rafael.

"People come to our meetings and see we don't put on white sheets and burn crosses," said W. Gary Woodward, section leader for the Marin branch of the society.

There is a difference, though, between members of the John Birch Society and those who labor in other vineyards.

They know they belong to a group that, at one time at least, was a byword for extremism. Even today, some dozen years after the society's noisiest times, membership in the monolithic organization probably brands one, at best, as an ultra-conservative.

Woodward, who has been a Bircher since 1963, said it took him two years "to get over the psychological barrier of joining the John Birch Society."

Although the society no longer draws the headlines it once did, members still work — many with an almost religious fervor — to right what they see as the country's wrongs.

Woodward views the struggle as a simple battle between good and evil. To him, good is epitomized in the period "before Roosevelt" in this country and evil as a two-headed monster (Communism and Big Government), which the Birchers believe is now running the United States.

Through the years, the Birchers have stuck with a pretty constant list of what they call "agenda items." Although some of these goals are no longer on the list ("we aren't still working to impeach Earl Warren," Woodward said with a smile), the basic aims of the society have remained unchanged.

Its main thrust, Woodward said, is "to get the U.S. out of the United Nations and to get the U.N. out of the U.S."

Domestically, the Birchers rate politicians as good if they advocate "less government and more individual responsibility" and bad if they push for regional government, federal grants to states and cities or welfare legislation.

VOLUNTEER — Virna Chrest, staffer at the American Opinion Library run by the John Birch Society in San Rafael, leafs through pamphlets on display in the cheerful book shop. Birch Society members say they aim at becoming "an influence, not a power," in American society, righting what they see as leftist wrongs.

In Marin, the Birch Society has "give or take, about 100 members — some are moving or dying" from time to time, one member said.

Woodward confirmed this membership and added that the goal of the Birch Society is to have 1,000 members in each Congressional district. This goal is a long way from reality in Marin, he said, where the society has not found the fertile territory that it has in Southern California.

However, he said, he has been pleased with strides made by the society in Marin — and especially, he said, in a new interest by younger people in the movement.

Birchers, who view themselves as an "educational army that deals in the printed word," gather in Marin homes several times a month to view filmstrips, share their views with prospective members and to talk over other projects.

Four times a year, they sponsor a public speaker who espouses Birch ideas.

At one such affair recently, an ex-movie actor named Ron Wright, drew a crowd of 50 to 75 people in a rented hall in San Anselmo. Coffee and cookies were served, the flag saluted and an invocation given.

Then Wright, who speaks in a manner which one Birch member called reminiscent of the hero in "The Music Man," began a speech pretty much summarizing the society's views.

"Our founding fathers devised the most nearly perfect system ever designed," Wright said of the Constitution, which Birchers believe is being abandoned or ignored these days.

Few of the country's present and recent past leaders escaped Wright's wrath. From Roosevelt to Reagan, they're all about the same, according to Birchers.

Filled with phrases like "the youth culture is dying of its own excesses" and "this is the age of awareness, not Aquarius," Wright exhorted his audience. Finally, he chanted a list of the country's evils in which he included unrestricted immigration, welfare, pornography, communes, rock music, abortion, gun laws, regional government, "so-called shortages" and federal programs.

"But the 'Nixons, Kissingers and regional planners don't own this country yet," Wright intoned, ending with "Rally round the flag, boys, 'Don't shoot until you see the whites of their eyes,' and 'we have light and truth on our side.'"

"If you haven't joined God's side, then do so," he concluded, inviting the audience, much in the manner of a revivalist, to come into the Birch Society.

In contrast to Wright's fiery words, a visit to the Birch Society's bookstore on B Street in San Rafael is like having a cup of tea with a nice aunt.

Woodward's wife, Betty, who takes a weekly turn at presiding over the store, shows one around. The shop, painted a fresh white inside, has neatly lined-up rows of books and pamphlets and such items as bumper stickers that say "Happiness is Being a Bircher" on display.

George Washington looks down on the cheerful scene.

Mrs. Woodward, a handsome blonde woman, said that the books are sold at retail prices — about one-third of them to Birch members. Included in the display are Birch standbys like "None Dare Call It Conspiracy" and "Teddy Bare, the Real Story of Chappaquiddick" along with McGuffey readers and classics — "Little Women" and "Black Beauty" — for children.

The store is open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mrs. Woodward explained, but as with all volunteer efforts, "sometimes emergencies arise" and staffers don't show up. A dedicated Bircher of about 10 years, Mrs. Woodward takes a regular stint at the store.

She said, in answer to a question, that "maybe it was even a little before" her husband became interested in the Birch Society that her own enthusiasm started.

"I gave up African violets and baseball" for the John Birch Society, Woodward said, explaining the long hours he spends volunteering.

Woodward, like many dedicated Birchers, aims at becoming "an influence, not a power" in this country. He is convinced he has found what he was seeking in the society. "Once exposed to the truth, the smog bank (of confusion) dissolves," he explained.

He intends to continue to spread the truth — as he sees it — to those who will listen.

REMODELING JOB INTERRUPTED

The shattered brick shell of what once was Rico's Restaurant in Sausalito stands like a relic of war or earthquake. Two walls and the roof of the building at Bridgeway and Turney collapsed at 7:55 a.m. today, five minutes before workmen were to enter to continue with remodeling for its new owner, Sam Zakessian, owner of Zack's Restaurant across the street. Fire officials said erosion from excavation around the north and east walls caused them to cave in, bringing the roof down with them. Dollar damage was not estimated.

Seminar Hammers Out Plan To Aid Wildlife In An Oil Spill

By JEFF GREER

Three years ago last month, 9,000 wild birds were trapped in the largest oil spill in San Francisco Bay Area history. Despite frantic rescue efforts, all but a few hundred of the birds died.

A plan to save the birds if a similar spill happens again was hammered out over this past weekend at a three-day seminar in Inverness, by members of the Bay Area Wildlife Rehabilitation Council.

The council represents wildlife-oriented agencies throughout the Bay Area, including the Boyd Science Museum in San Rafael and the Marin County Schools office nature education program. Other members include International Bird Rescue in Richmond, the Alexander Lindsay Junior Museum in Walnut Creek, the San Francisco Zoo, and the Peninsula Humane Society of San Mateo County.

The state Department of Fish and Game and representatives of the Marin County Animal Control and Health Commission, the Marin County Veterinary Medical Association and the Animal Medical Care Foundation of Marin also participated in the planning seminar.

The result was a plan under which the council will equip expert teams and put them to work saving birds and other wildlife harmed by oil spills, under contract with local governments or industries.

The council hopes to have its plan written into the various counties' and cities oil spill emergency plans.

Council members David Smith, James Harris and others met Friday with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. officials at the utility firm's huge Moss Landing power plant in Monterey County, which is converting from natural gas to heavy oil for fuel supplies.

The Coastal Conservation Commission is requiring the firm to plan for wildlife rescue in case of spills; the council and the Monterey Audubon Society will contract to provide PG&E crews with the necessary training and planning, Smith reported.

The wildlife council also is working with Clean Bay Inc., the cooperative firm set up by the major Bay Area refineries to combat spills on the West Coast.

Over the weekend, the seminar participants hammered out an organization chart, predicted supplies needed to care for thousands of oiled birds, and discussed tying in their operation with local civil defense agencies.

The council hopes to expand its plans to care for wildlife affected by forest fires or other major disasters — but members realistically admitted that if a disaster affects humans, "wildlife will probably have to wait" to receive care.

Inmate Suffers Stab Wound In The Neck

A San Quentin inmate suffered a minor wound when stabbed in the neck while returning to his cell after dinner Saturday at about 7:30 p.m.

Roosevelt Smith, 29, had a half-inch stab wound, officials said.

Smith is serving a sentence for second degree burglary and forgery from Alameda County.

In another prison incident this weekend, officers said that Jack Stamphill, 49, failed to report to work furlough headquarters in San Francisco at 7 p.m. Saturday after being released to go to work for the day.

Stamphill, serving time for two counts of armed robbery in San Francisco, had been on the work furlough program since Feb. 14.

Old School May Close Next Year

West End School, oldest facility in the San Rafael school system, must be closed next year due to a financial squeeze caused by sagging enrollment, according to Supt. Donald Leisey.

The San Rafael Board of Education will consider Leisey's recommendation at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the schools administration building.

Student population of the city elementary district has dipped from 4,994 pupils in 1968 to 4,192 pupils currently, he said. The decline has been most significant in the West San Rafael area because the neighborhood has not been attracting younger families, he added.

Leisey noted that under state law, school expenditures must be reduced in proportion to declining enrollment.

Closure of West End School at 1821 Fifth Avenue, one of several suggestions by the citizens advisory committee, will result in a $32,000 saving annually, not including any funds generated by possible leasing of the structure, according to the superintendent.

The West End student population of about 100 pupils would be transferred to Sun Valley or Short schools, under the recommendation.

Labor Says Poor Nixon's Target

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The AFL-CIO has charged President Nixon with making the nation's poor the "victims of his revenge."

The AFL-CIO Executive Council made the charge yesterday in a statement calling on Congress to raise the national minimum wage from $1.60 an hour to $2.20 an hour without a special lower rate for teenagers, as advocated by the President.

Ranch Hand Is Killed In Automobile Crash

A 25-year-old ranch hand was killed yesterday when his car slammed headon into a concrete bridge abutment west of Petaluma.

Dead on arrival at Novato General Hospital after the 1:35 a.m. crash was Joel De Santiago of 4731 Bodega Avenue, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said De Santiago was sitting alone in his car on the east shoulder of Wilson Hill-Hicks Valley Road drinking beer. Four cans were found on the ground where the auto was parked.

He then started the car and accelerated to 50 miles per hour, driving partially on the shoulder and partially on the roadway. Wearing no seat belt, De Santiago was thrown against the steering wheel when his 1968 Oldsmobile hit the bridge abutment west of the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road, according to the highway patrol.

De Santiago was employed at the James McDowell Ranch in Petaluma. Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

Phone 'Phreak' Admits Misdemeanor Charges

A Point San Pedro man charged with five counts of possessing a "blue box," a device used to make long-distance telephone calls without paying, has pleaded guilty to two of the misdemeanor charges.

Sanford Herschel Kosman, 32, a manufacturer of custom motorcycle parts, is to be sentenced Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Peter Allen Smith last week accepted Kosman's guilty plea and dismissed the other three charges.

When Kosman was arrested in December, it was revealed in court documents that Pacific Telephone Co. had developed a new way of trapping "phone phreaks", electronic wizards who enjoy making free long-distance calls.

The new method involved tapping the telephone of anyone suspected of being a "phreak" to gather enough evidence to justify a search warrant.

Sgt. Garrett N. McDonald of the Marin Sheriff's Department said a "blue box" was seized at Kosman's home. The box emits musical tones when pressed, much like a pushbutton telephone, and enables the user to bypass the telephone company's computerized billing equipment.

Planners To Eye Use Permit Idea

A proposal to require tourist-oriented businesses to get a use permit in order to open up shop in Mill Valley will be discussed by the city planning commission today at 8 p.m. at city hall, according to Robert J. Hanna, associate planner.

When the proposal was before the city council last week, it aroused protests from downtown businessmen, leading the council to refer it back to the planning commission for more study.

Also today, the commission will consider a proposal to reopen an abandoned Burger Chef drive-in as a Der Wiener schnitzel at Camino Alto and East Blithedale Avenue.

13-Year-Old Boy Pulled Out Of Fairfax Chimney

A 13-year-old boy, trapped more than five hours in the chimney of a Fairfax home, was rescued early yesterday by Fairfax firemen.

Michael Patrick Clancey of 5 Sierra Avenue, San Anselmo, had climbed into the chimney at 81 Taylor Drive, seeking to enter the house to open it up for young friends who were locked out, firemen said.

He became wedged about eight feet down the chimney at 9:30 p.m. Saturday — but his friends didn't call for help until 2:45 a.m. yesterday, firemen said.

The slender youngster, shirtless and shoeless, was hauled out on a rope, by Fireman Robert Agnoski and Engineer Patrick Stocking.

Trash Fire Results In Arrest

A 22-year-old San Rafael man was arrested on suspicion of arson Saturday after Fairfax police discovered a smoldering pile of rubbish near an apartment doorway on Bolinas Road.

Robert J. Webb of 355 Canal Street, Apt. 28, was booked into Marin County Jail and released after posting $500 bail to appear Wednesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Fairfax police said they found a charred pile of rubbish next to a doorway of an apartment in a complex at 200 Bolinas Road after a tipster called at 5:20 p.m. Saturday. There was no damage.

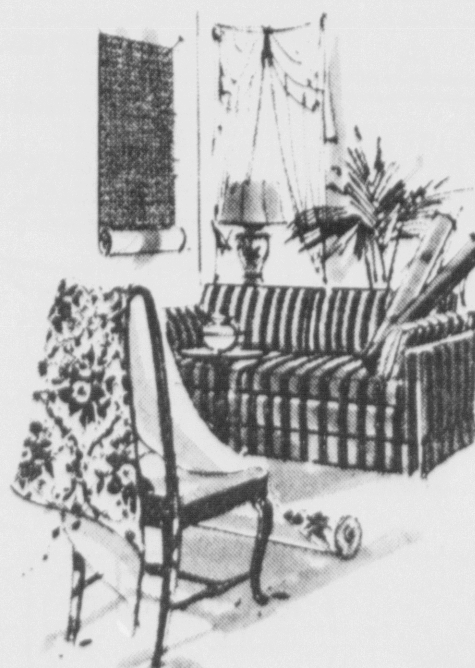

Papers Filed For Wornum

Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum today filed his nomination papers for the Democratic nomination in the Ninth Assembly District.

Wornum, four other Democrats, four Republicans and one Peace and Freedom Party candidate are running for the seat being vacated by longtime Republican incumbent William T. Bagley.

Also filing for reelection was James G. MacNichols, a director of the Homestead Valley Sanitary District.

Shah Doubts Oil Problem A Real One

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Shah of Iran says that the Arab oil embargo has not cut supplies to the U.S. and that he believes the United States is importing more oil than ever.

In a taped interview carried yesterday on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes," the Shah was asked about the outlook for lifting of the oil embargo.

"Why should you care about that," the Shah replied. "You are not short of oil. But you have imported more oil than any time in the past."

"You mean," he was asked, "we are still importing more oil than we were, let's say, in September?"

"I cannot say for sure," the Shah replied. "But what is certain is that you are not importing less."

"What you seem to be saying is that there is some fraud involved, or that there is something going on that doesn't meet the eye."

"Well," the Shah said, "something is going on for sure."

"And who is being enriched by it?"

"The oil companies," he replied.

Frank Ikard, head of the American Petroleum Institute, said he did not wish to contradict the Shah but "our figures indicate the embargo is tightening up more."

Postal Rate Hikes Are Set

Postage rates for first class and airmail will go up two cents Saturday, according to San Rafael Postmaster Hugh Cassidy.

First class mail will cost 10 cents per ounce, airmail will be 13 cents and post cards eight cents, said Cassidy.

In addition, fourth class mail rates will increase an average of six per cent depending on weight and distance; third class rates, used mostly for advertising material, will rise by 1.3 cents per piece, and international rates will rise by 20 per cent.

Further information can be obtained from Marin post offices.

Sierra Club Unit Will Elect Slate

The Marin County chapter of the Sierra Club will elect officers Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the supervisors chambers at Civic Center.

A slide presentation and discussion of the Escalante also is planned.

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL
Today is Monday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of 1974 with 309 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

French painter Pierre Renoir was born Feb. 25, 1859.

On this day in history:

In 1801, J. P. Morgan formed the United States Steel Corporation in New Jersey. It became the nation's first "billion dollar" enterprise.

In 1919, Oregon became the first state to put a tax on gasoline, 1 per cent.

In 1967, American warships began shelling Vietnam.

In 1970, a record $1.3 million was paid for a Vincent Van Gogh painting in New York City.

A thought for the day: American philosopher William James said: "There is no more miserable human being than one in whom nothing is habitual but indecision."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Little Work Is Needed To Reap This Special Gift Offer

A few weeks ago I was planning to tell all you bridge players how to make sure of getting a gift. When I heard that a certain white-bearded gentleman was going to picket my bridge club I was unmoved. It was the reindeer that got me; I can't bear to see animals out of work and unhappy. So that's why this article is a few weeks late.

NEED A GIFT

This is the kind of hand in which you need a gift. You're scheduled to lose a club and a diamond unless Santa Claus or Sheinwold come to your rescue.

Win the opening lead with the ace of hearts and ruff a heart with a high trump. Lead out the ace and king of trumps and ruff another heart. Draw one more trump. By now, as you have noticed, West cannot follow suit to either spades or hearts.

A LOW CLUB

Lead the low club toward dummy.

West cannot afford to step up with the king of clubs. If he did, you would have three sure club tricks. Hence West must play a low club.

You play the jack of clubs from dummy, winning the trick. Now lead a low club right back. East discards a heart, and you follow suit with the nine of clubs.

WITH CLUBS

This gives West a trick with the ten of clubs. What's more, it gives West the chance to show his better nature. If West returns a club you win a trick with the queen of clubs; if he returns a diamond, you win a trick with the jack of diamonds. Either way your slam is assured.

It pays to let your opponents do your work for you in this way. It keeps the spirit of Christmas alive in them.

DAILY QUESTION

With neither side vulnerable, the player at your right deals and bids one club.

You hold:
♠ - 6 5 2
♥ - K Q 10 9 7 4 2
♦ - 10 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

Most experts use this jump overall to show a long but mediocre suit in an otherwise worthless hand. The idea is to steal bidding room from the opponents. Don't use this kind of bid if your partner firmly believes in strong jump overcalls.

Nixon Image Worsens In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California public's appraisal of President Nixon's performance in office hit a new low earlier this month when only 18 per cent of those polled said they thought he was doing a good job, the California Poll reported today.

Forty-seven per cent of the 1,179 individuals questioned said Nixon is doing a poor job, compared with 44 per cent who gave that response in August 1973, the poll said. Thirty-two per cent said he was doing a fair job and three per cent gave no opinion.

Pollster Mervin D. Field said that apart from Watergate, Nixon was most often criticized for the way he has handled the economy, for not being able to slow inflation and rising prices, and for the way he has responded to charges that large contributors to his election campaign got special favors.

Nixon got very high ratings in foreign affairs, Field said.

The 18 per cent figure for those thinking Nixon has done a good job compares to 20 per cent in August 1973, 34 per cent in May 1973 and 37 per cent in November 1970.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

Howenstein Heads Juvenile Officers

Capt. G. Albert Howenstein of the San Anselmo Police Department has been elected president of the California State Juvenile Officers Association.

Lt. Arthur Knopf of the San Jose Police Department was elected first vice president at the group's meeting last week in Walnut Creek. Other officers will be elected by the central and southern divisions, Howenstein said.

Installation of officers will be March 21 in Fresno.

LAMMERS — Army Pvt. William N. Lammers, 18, of Novato, has completed infantry advanced individual training with the 9th Infantry Division's Company C, 2nd Battalion, 60th Infantry, 2nd Brigade at Fort Lewis, Wash. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Lammers.

Traffic Drops

PARIS (UPI) — Automobile traffic in Paris has dropped 5 to 10 per cent since the price of gasoline soared and subway traffic has increased 16 per cent, city officials said today.

Consultant Selection On Agenda

The Fairfax Town Council is scheduled to meet at 8 p.m. today at the Fairfax Women's Club to select a planning consultant for revision of the town general plan, according to Town Administrator Robert E. Crowe.

The consulting firms of Lampman and Associates and Wallace, McHarg, Roberts and Todd were interviewed by the city council in closed session Feb. 14. A vote taken after Councilman Albert E. Gately left the session produced a deadlock.

The meeting was adjourned to today, but Gately is unable to attend due to a prior commitment.

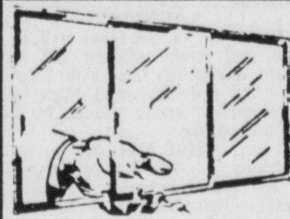

Crowe said councilmen Robert R. Souza and Lee Nelder plan to attend the session today despite a request by Mayor E. Ross Parkerson that the meeting be canceled due to Gately's absence.

Report Edited By Consultants

A report citing defective parts of the Golden Gate Bridge was edited by engineering consultants who wrote the report. The changes from an earlier version, which had warned of "extremely risky" corrosion, were requested by the bridge district's engineer, Harry D. Reilich.

A headline in Saturday's Independent-Journal incorrectly said the revisions were made by district directors. Reilich said the editing was necessary to "recognize the whole picture," which he said showed a thoroughly safe bridge.

Garner's Home Finale Is A Smasher

By LEW CODDINGTON

Wil Garner gave his farewell performance to the hometown fans Saturday night. It was a smash.

The 6-foot-4 forward from College of Marin scored 40 points as he led the Tars to an 89-72 victory over West Valley of Campbell in their final home game of the 1973-74 season before about 800 fans.

He also put his name into the Tar record books in most of the significant scoring categories, as he broke Joe Smith's marks for single-season points, career points, and career points in league play. And he has two games to add to his record totals.

"Some day he's going to score 90 and I want to be around," said coach John Panagakos afterward.

It was almost as if Garner thought back over his two-year career, remembered all his greatest moves, and decided to use them Saturday night. They were all there: the quick jumper from outside, the spidery drive along the baseline, the high-leaping tip, the adroit one- and two-step maneuvers after a rebound.

Rarely did he have the ball for more than five seconds. Rarely did he pass off. Rarely did he dribble, except when it was part of the choreography of his move. He just took the ball and scored with a relentlessness that made the term "scoring machine" cease to be a cliché.

Garner made 16 of 25 shots from the floor and eight of 11 from the foul line. He also grabbed 21 rebounds.

Leonard Smith, another sophomore in his last home appearance, added 14 points, as did freshman John Channell. Soph Bill Donnellan netted eight.

Craig Perkins and Mark Bonvehio scored 17 points apiece for West Valley.

The victory gave Marin a 11-3 record in Camino Norte Conference play and a 23-3 overall mark with two games left this week — in Redwood City tomorrow against Canada College, and in San Pablo Thursday against Contra Costa.

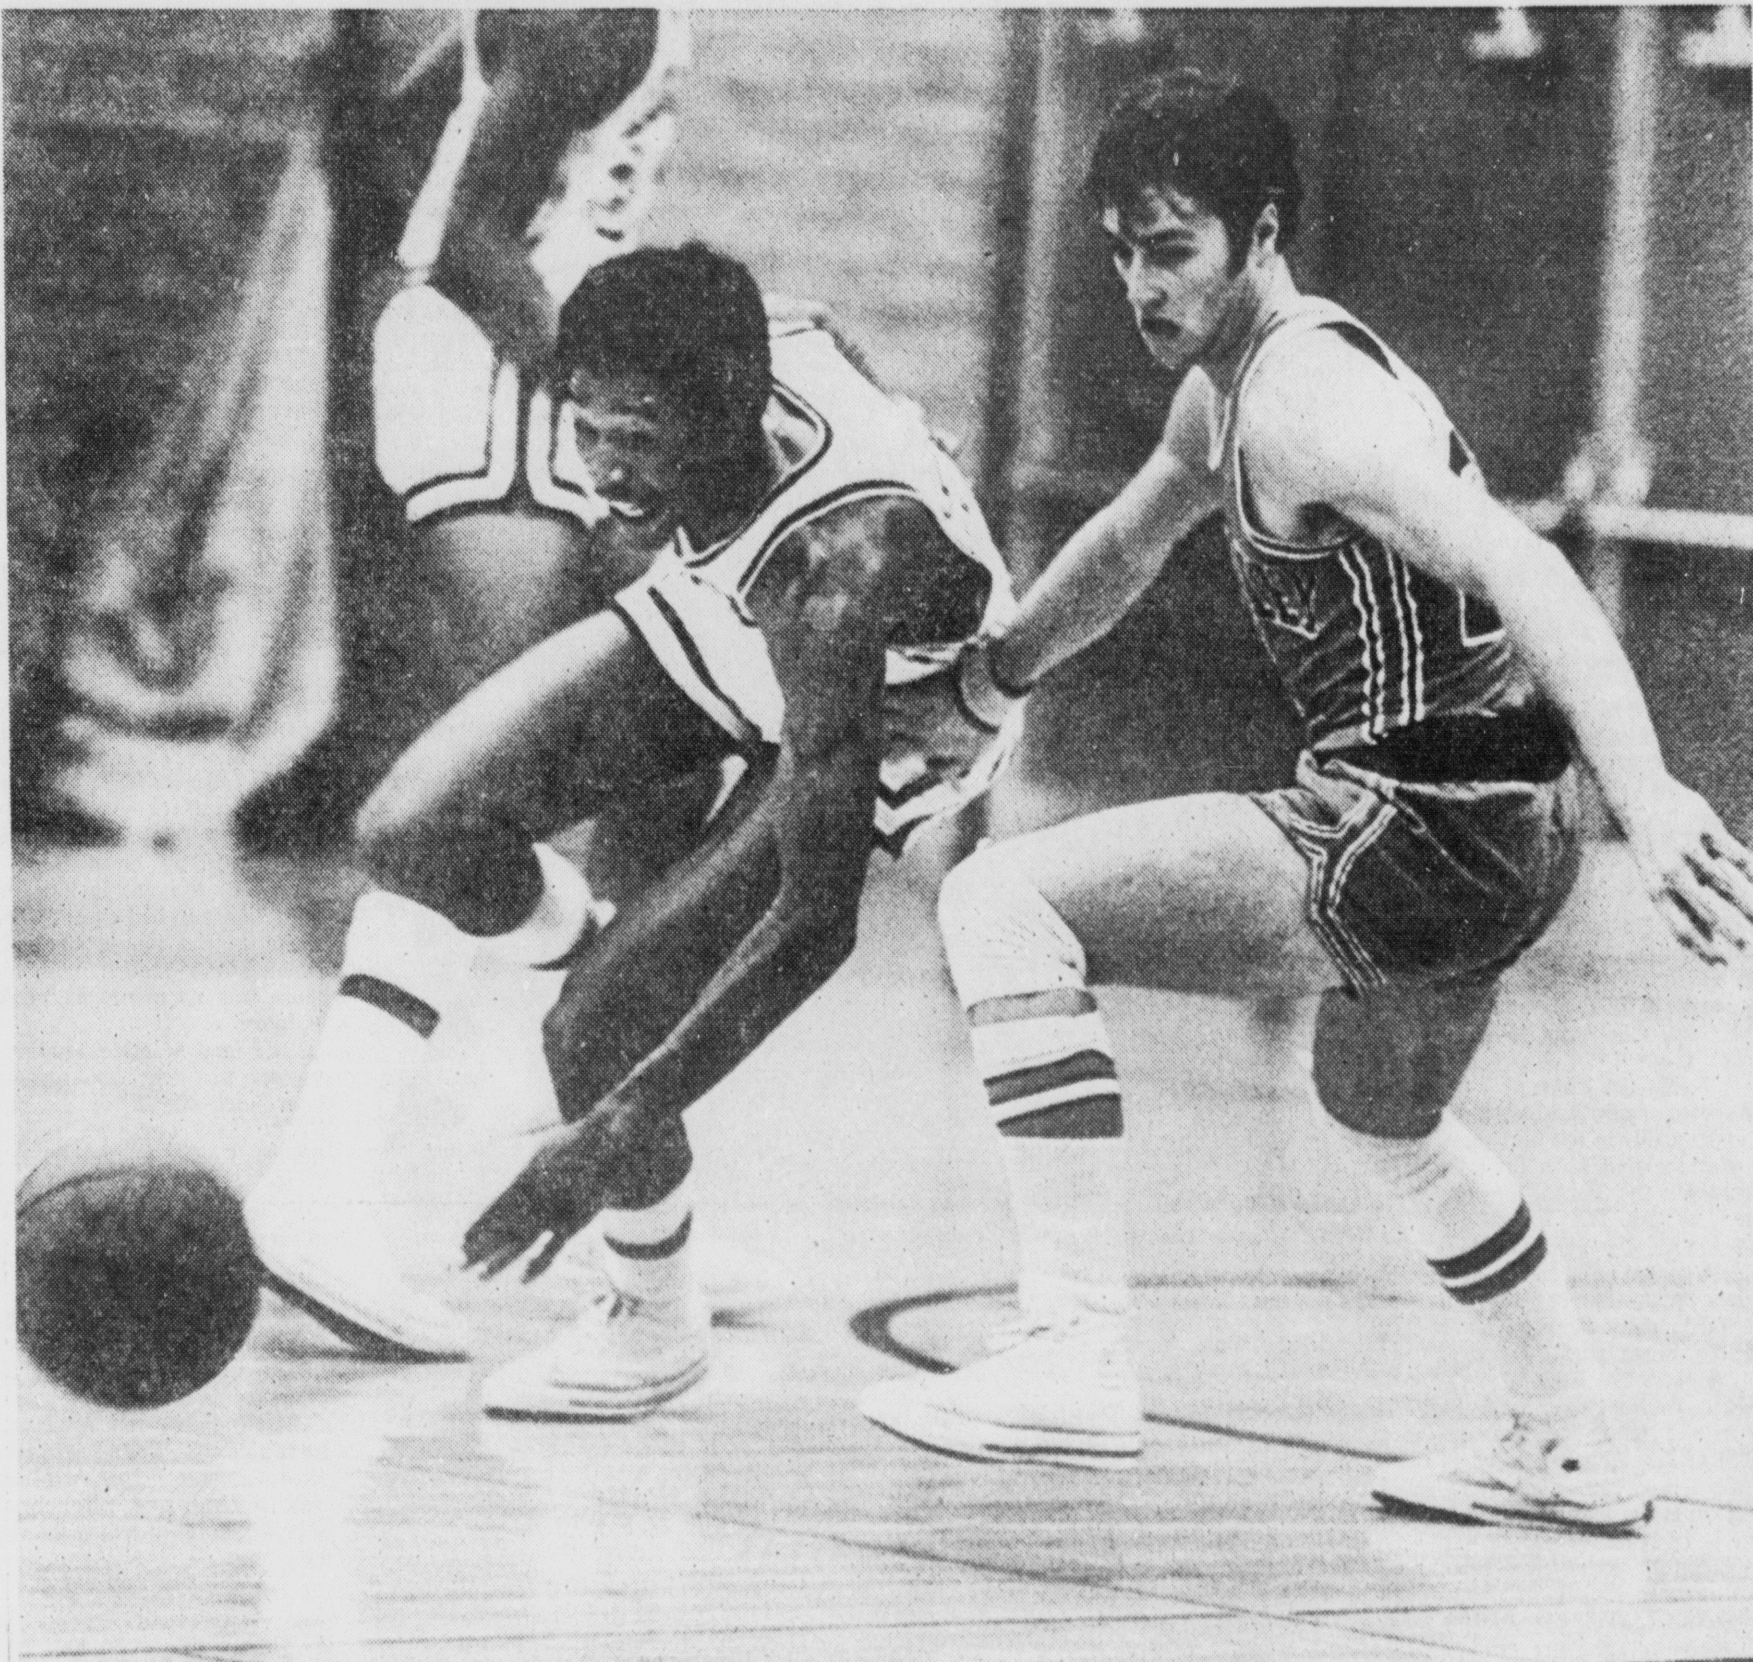

Garner's 40 points was his junior college career high, but missed by seven the school record set by Tom Stetson against Chaffey in 1967. He did set marks with 615 points this season (Smith had 600 in 1970-71), 565 points in his conference career (Smith had 535 in 1971-72) and 1,167 points in his overall career (Smith had 1,146 in 1970-72).

After taking a 19-14 lead, West Valley yielded to Garner's scoring and Channell's rebounding and Marin moved ahead late in the first half, 45-28.

With Garner sitting out five minutes with four personal fouls, the Vikings rallied to close to 62-59 with 8:25 left, but Marin pulled away again. A one-handed slam dunk by Smith forced the demoralized Vikings to call time with 5:02 left trailing, 74-63.

Garner was awarded the game ball by athletic director Harry Pieper in a brief ceremony after the game.

Sonoma State's Victory Celebration Is Spoiled

CHICO — Sonoma State's victory party over the weekend was spoiled by two ungracious hosts.

The Cossacks were set to celebrate the clinching for their second consecutive Far Western Conference basketball championship.

Unfortunately, the party was spoiled — first by an 82-71 University of California, Davis victory Friday, and then by a 90-85 loss to Chico State here Saturday night.

The back-to-back defeats dropped the Cossack's record to 4-2, leaving them with a one-game edge over Davis (8-3). Chico is in third with a 7-3 mark. Davis defeated Humboldt Saturday, 88-63. Chico meets Humboldt tonight in a make-up game.

Hopes of an undefeated conference season dashed, Sonoma now must beat Humboldt there Friday night at 8 o'clock to clinch the title. If they lose to Humboldt, either Davis or Chico could take a share of the crown.

Should a tie occur, a playoff game would be held to determine the FWC's representative to the National Collegiate Athletic Association Western Regionals March 7-9.

"We could have really helped ourselves by putting it away and beating one of those teams," Sonoma coach Bill Trumbo said, referring to the Davis and Chico games. "It would have been nice to have beaten one of them on their home court."

The Cossacks almost did just that against Chico, holding the lead most of the game until the Wildcats went ahead, 74-71, with 5:40 remaining. From that point on, Chico was in control.

The difference was rebounding, especially in the second half, according to Trumbo. "It was just our rebounding. Where we get hurt is when the other team gets too many second and third shots."

The Wildcats got plenty of those, as they outrebounded Sonoma, 52-34 and took 11 more shots. This effectively countered the Cossacks' 54 per cent field goal shooting. Mike Harski gained 17 rebounds to lead Chico.

In the preliminary game, the Cossack junior varsity beat Chico, 73-72, on a last-second shot by Venson Washington to finish at 16-6. Bill Gricius scored 28 points for Sonoma and Washington added 27.

Thompson's Thoughts On Golf Winnings

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The pro golf tour's newest star, 27-year-old Leonard Thompson has time to think about the money today — $52,000.

The hulking North Carolinian won the country's second richest tournament, the $260,000 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Golf Classic, yesterday by a single stroke and said "I never thought about the money." It was his first tournament victory after turning pro four years ago, although he managed to earn $91,000 last year.

Thompson looked like he was scrambling in the final two rounds over the watery, 7,128-yard Inverrary course. But his Sunday shooting netted him a 68 — 278, 10 strokes under par. His round included seven birdies and three bogeys.

"The difference in my game is that I made every birdie putt I looked at the last couple of days," Thompson said.

He appeared to be growling with his blue eyes at his shots and talking to himself. He admitted he sometimes talks to the ball. "I can't play good without being tense."

Seven-year pro Hale Irwin of Kirkwood, Mo., missing a 15-foot birdie try on the final hole which could have thrown him into a playoff with Thompson, finished with a second place 68 — 279 worth $29,640.

Defending champion Lee Trevino carded a closing round 69 for a 281 total and set off a rhubarb involving two veteran CBS television sportscasters, director Frank Chirkinian and announcer Ray Scott. Trevino claimed the pair cost him the tournament when Scott, relaying a joking comment from Chirkinian, told Trevino at the 17th green they could show his putt on television if he would hold up 20 seconds for a commercial to end.

Trevino was only one shot back of Thompson at the time. He joked with Scott a moment, then missed his 20-foot try for a birdie, leaving it 10 inches short. Without bothering to set up, he then missed the 10-inch putt and took a bogey 5 on the hole. Obviously upset, Trevino then proceeded to bogey the final hole, winding up three strokes behind Thompson.

Corte Madera Rider Triumphs

SANTA ROSA — Bob Boyar of Corte Madera won the 360 cc novice main event Friday night in American Motorcycle Association racing at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds here.

Petaluma's Reggie Jackson won the 250 cc junior final, while Fenn Pervier of Mill Valley was third in the 360 cc expert race and Larry Drew of Petaluma third and Kelly Melssac of Novato fifth in the 250 cc expert race.

Scott Florke of Novato was first and Merv Sartori of Petaluma second in the first heat of the Bay Counties Racing Association indoor midget auto race Saturday night, but Bob Johnson of Santa Rosa won the main event.

were by 10-2 and 8-0 scores, and after his loss he triumphed 15-4 and 18-3 to capture third place.

Tam's Greg Shaughnessy (123 pounds), San Marin's Tim Lesley (168) and Terra Linda's Mark Egide (123) and Farhad (Joe) Sariasiani (114) lost their first-round matches, Egide in overtime. Mike Feeny (106) of Drake decided not to compete.

He will journey to Cal State University, Hayward, Friday and Saturday to meet top wrestlers from other sectional meets throughout California.

Ford decided on four opponents handily, but suffered a 4-3 loss to eventual second-place finisher from James Logan (Union City) in his third match.

MARTINEZ — Five Marin wrestlers were eliminated at the earliest possible moment here Saturday, but Ford had a better idea.

AT WINTER MEETING

NFL Owners Determine Super Bowl Site

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — National Football League owners were expected to make a final determination on the site of Super Bowl IX the first order of business today when they open their annual winter meetings.

The world championship game was awarded to New Orleans last April, but labor problems have hampered work on the ultra modern multimillion dollar Super Dome. NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle visited New Orleans last week and was to report to the owners this morning.

If the Super Dome is not ready, the game probably will be switched to Los Angeles. Miami is the site for the 1976 game.

The owners also are expected to decide on expansion and their status in negotiations with the players association. Four cities—Seattle, Tampa, Phoenix and Memphis—are considered the leading choices should the league decide to expand from its present 26-team format.

The NFL Management Council, which will represent the league in contract talks with the players association beginning next month, will announce its plans Tuesday. The Council will be in session today and Tuesday to decide on the plan of action to be taken in the talks on a new contract.

The meetings are expected to last until Friday and then will be adjourned until the summer meeting in New York in late May.

Willoughby Eyes Role As Starter

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — Although the San Francisco Giants management may have other ideas, pitcher Jim Willoughby vows he'll be a starter this year.

"I plan to be back in rotation by the end of spring training," the 25-year-old right-hander said yesterday.

Willoughby, who started at the beginning of last season and then finished in the bullpen, is listed for "long relief" at the Giants' spring training camp here.

"They can have all that 'long relief' stuff they want," he said.

"After I fell out of rotation last year, they tried me 'long' and during one spell I went 18 days without getting close to the mound."

Willoughby, who threw 21 home run pitches in 123 innings last year, no longer throws a curve because, "My curve ball, I discovered, was killing me."

Giants third base coach Ozzie Virgil agreed. "Willoughby should stay with his fastball, slider and change."

"When he throws the curve it doesn't get up there in a big enough hurry," Virgil said.

"The batters see it for too long a time, adjust for the wait and when it finally arrives — hooooo-boy!"

Odom Set As A's Starter

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — John "Blue Moon" Odom worked out for the first time yesterday as the Oakland A's went through their second day of spring training.

Manager Alvin Dark said Odom will be the A's fourth starter this year "unless he pitches himself out of a job."

Pitcher Buddy Copeland also worked out yesterday and Dark gave both hurlers a turn on the mound for batting practice.

DON'T LET THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE DRIVE YOU TO A CRISIS OF SMALLER PROPORTIONS.

A Volvo can get almost twice the gasoline mileage of some popular big cars.

Yet unlike small cars, Volvo has about the same front seat legroom as a Cadillac de Ville. As much back seat legroom as a Lincoln Continental. And more trunk space than the Pinto and Barracuda combined.

But Volvo isn't just roomy. It's comfortable. The bucket seats are orthopedically designed to give support to all the contours of the body. Even to the point of having an adjustment that gives the small of your back firmer or softer support.

And in a Volvo, you won't have to gather your courage to enter crowded highways. Its responsive, fuel-injected engine lets you move out into traffic before onrushing traffic moves into you.

And once you're out there, you'll actually feel the rigidity of Volvo's body—welded into one solid piece of steel with thousands of closely-spaced spot welds.

So instead of overreacting to the gasoline shortage, respond thoughtfully. By getting a Volvo.

That way, you can drive a big car without adding fuel to the energy crisis.

Ailing Bullets Return For NBA Drive

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
Capital's walking wounded returned to the front Sunday to prime the Bullets for their final month of regular National Basketball Association action.

Phil Chenier, sidelined the past week by a pulled hamstring muscle, ripped the Detroit defense for 14 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter as Capital posted a 94-84 victory over the Pistons.

The return of Archie Clark, out three weeks with an elbow injury, also allowed Coach K.C. Jones to relax some of those tense bench muscles. Clark tallied 13 points.

Detroit, led by Dave Bing's 18 points, grabbed a 51-43 halftime lead, but Capital forged 10 unanswered tallies midway through the third period to take the lead for good.

Celtics 111, Hawks 96
John Havlicek scored 32 points as Boston defeated Atlanta for the fifth straight time this season. The Hawks, playing without Lou Hudson (hip contusion), received a 25-point effort from Pete Maravich.

Bucks 100, Kings 93
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, held to eight points in the first three quarters, scored 11 in the final period for the Bucks. Lucius Allen carried the Milwaukee attack with 31 points. KC-Oma-ha lost center Sam Lacey with a knee injury midway through the third stanza. Jimmy Walker led the Kings with 26 points.

Lakers 100, Bulls 90
Gail Goodrich scored 28 points and Happy Hairston added 24 as Los Angeles closed to within 1-1/2 games of idle Golden State in the Pacific Division. Bob Love scored 23 points for the Bulls as they lost only their third game in the last 19 starts.

Rockets 133, Trail Blazers 115
Houston hit 56.5 per cent of its floor shots and gained a 52-37 rebound margin as Rudy Tomjanovich led the assault against Portland with 28 points.

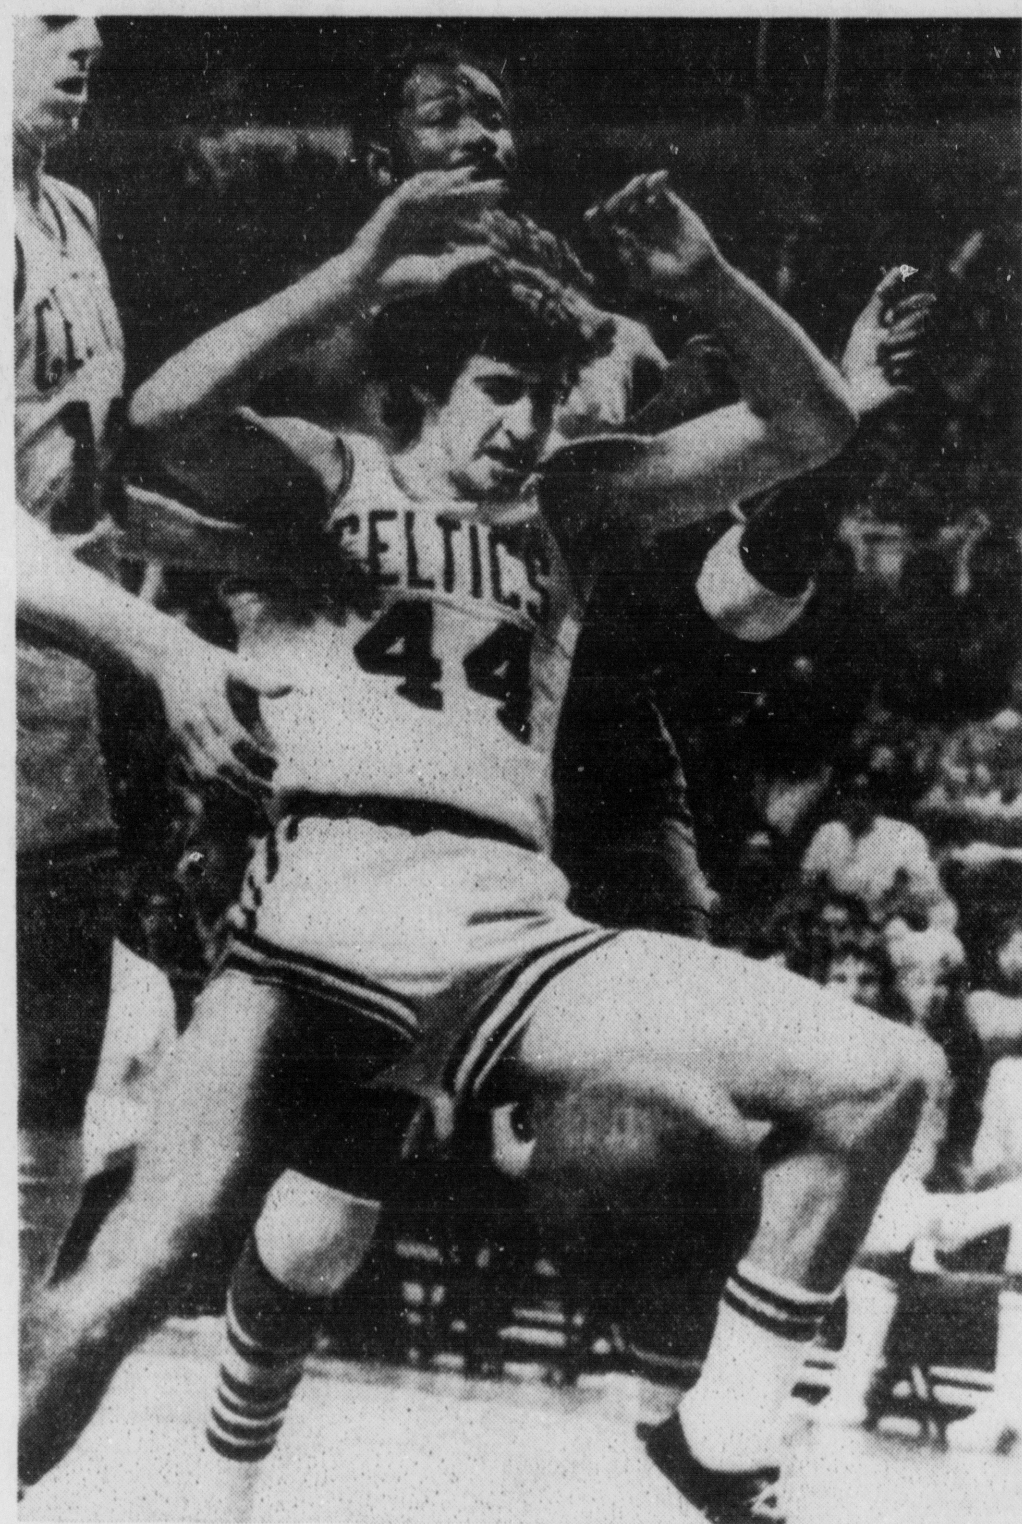

Marin A.C. Takes Team Title

The Marin Aquatic Club won the team championship but a girl from Tamalpais Swim Club won most of the honors in the second annual Marin A.C. Junior-Senior Class swimming meet at Redwood High School Saturday and yesterday.

Susan Barnard won the 200-yard backstroke (2:26.3), the 200 breast (2:41.5) and the 200 individual medley (2:21.0) to become the only Marin swimmer to capture three first places.

Marin A.C. compiled 431 1/2 points to easily outdistance the rest of the 27-team field. American River was second with 154, Pleasant Hill third with 120 and Petaluma fourth with 77.

Scott Hislop of Marin A.C. won the 200 back (2:14.3) and 400 I.M. (4:31.5) and was third Calvin Murphy added 24 and Mike Newlin had 22. Geoff Petrie topped the Blazers with 23.

Cavaliers 101, Suns 97
Three points by Lenny Wilkens and Dwight Davis's two foul shots, all in the last 27 seconds, paced Cleveland's win over Phoenix. Wilkens led the Cavs with 19 points, while Keith Erickson and Neal Walk each scored 22 for the Suns.

SuperSonics 115, 76ers 105
Seattle received rare balanced scoring from its starters as all five hit in double figures. Spencer Haywood led the Sonics with 37 points. Philadelphia, mired in the Atlantic Division cellar, was led by Tom Van Arsdale's 26 points.

Warriors Maintain First, Sans Nate

OAKLAND (UPI) — Even without injured Nate Thurmond, the Golden State Warriors hold a 1-1/2-game lead today in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division.

With Thurmond on the bench Saturday, the Warriors trimmed the visiting Philadelphia 76ers, 125-106, thanks largely to the shooting of Rick Barry.

Barry netted 51 points, for his season high, and got help from Cazzie Russell with 26 markers. It was the 11th time in his National Basketball Association career that Barry had topped 50 points in a game.

Clyde Lee, a forward playing at center because of the injury problems, grabbed 24 rebounds. The Warriors are idle tonight and entertain Phoenix tomorrow night.

The victory over the 76ers was the fourth in the last five games for the Warriors.

Judy Anderson Unofficial Bowling Tourney Winner

Judy Anderson maintains only a 95 bowling average but somebody forgot to tell her before she tried her hand in the Marin County Women's Bowling Association 14th annual tournament.

She bowled a 467 three-game series in team play, 435 in doubles and 401 in singles, a scratch total of 1,301. It was 446 pins over her average. Her handicap total of 2,059 put her on top of the unofficial standings of the tourney ended yesterday. It was held at Nave Lanes in Ignacio.

Unofficial top winners in the tourney (final results will not become official until all averages are verified):

All events handicap — Judy Anderson, 2,059; Carolyn Finch, 1,964; Barb Hassinger, 1,947.

All events scratch — Penny Tauscher, 1,783; Marilyn Epidendio, 1,694.

Team event — Helen Brown, Patti Barendregt, Mary Denson, JoAnn Wulschleger, 2,517; Sue Boyle, Wilma McKeligan, Gerry Gravel, Anne Gilder-sleeve, 2,458; Joan Lindsay, Carolyn Finch, Bess Marston, Bobbie Hourigan, 2,457.

Doubles — Ruth Soldavini-Cathy Pan-tages, 1,316; Lou Reeder-Nancy Ferretti, 1,313; Joan Day-Nancy Leslie, 1,305.

Singles — Gloria Lamsie, 687; Carolyn Finch, 681; Elly Duffy, 678.

High scratch game — Patti Barendregt, 255.

High scratch series — Ann Amott, 658.

49ers' Jackson Is Impressive

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers' rookie camp ended yesterday, with halfback Wilbur Jackson showing well in passing drills.

"He reaches out and catches the ball with his hands," coach Dick Nolan said of the club's first draft choice. He said the Alabama star "doesn't have to cradle it with his body."

SPRING TRAINING STARTS

Baseball's Energy Crunch

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

MIAMI (UPI) — Spring training officially has started, or if you want to put it another way, baseball already is beginning to feel the first pinch of the energy crisis.

Sixteen major league clubs are using Florida for spring training and the situation regarding those cars lining up for gas here is the same as it is throughout most of the country. Bad.

Few, if any, are exempt from that long, time-consuming wait in line.

It doesn't matter who you are. If you want gas, you wait.

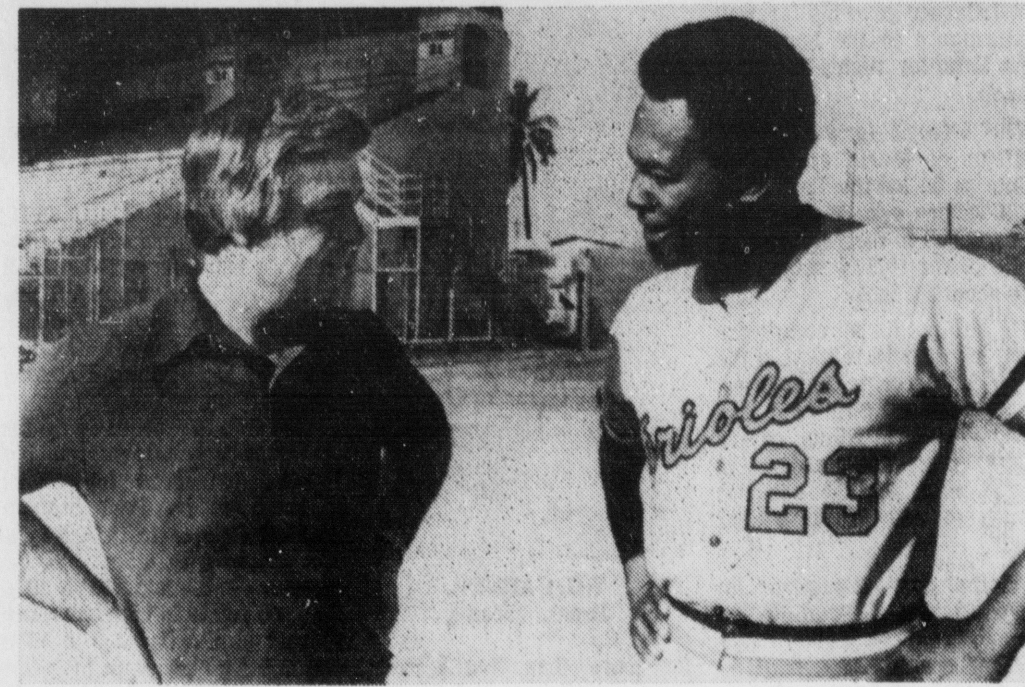

Jim Palmer, the Baltimore Orioles' pitching ace, was talking about the gas shortage at lunch. Grant Jackson, also coming off a good year, one in which he was 8-0 and had a 1.98 earned run average, was listening.

"The other day in Baltimore, before coming down here, I waited 45 minutes in line and that wasn't so bad except when I got to the pump, the lady running the station told me there was no more gas," said Palmer.

"A friend of mine happened to know this lady about an hour later and she filled me up. From the way she talked though, I could tell she thought I was Marty Domres. She said 'just keep throwing those touchdown passes.'"

"Wait a minute," I said, "my name is Jim Palmer. I play for the Orioles, not the Colts, and we won more games in one week than they did all year."

Jim Palmer, the American League's Cy Young winner, Most Valuable Player runnerup and top-salaried pitcher at $130,000, laughed telling the story.

Grant Jackson at the Orioles' spring training camp in Miami, Fla. (UPI Telephoto)

"Shows you how well known I am in Baltimore," he said. Grant Jackson laughed too. "Don't feel bad," he said. "Before I signed with the Phillies in 1962, I never heard of any baseball players either. Where I came from, Fostoria, Ohio, I never paid any attention to baseball. I used to love football. Jim Brown was my hero."

"I think Tony Taylor was the first baseball player who ever stuck in my mind and that was because I met him and liked him when I first joined the Phillies. But I never heard of fellows like Warren Spahn or Duke Snider before I got into baseball."

"Four guys come to my mind when you ask me about my first recollection of ballplayers," said Palmer, forgetting the gas c r u n c h temporarily.

"The first one is Billy Martin. I remember coming home from school one day and watching him make that great catch against the Dodgers on TV back in the '50's. I used to love the Yankees, so the guys I remember best are the ones who used to beat them — Billy Pierce, Herb Score and Virgil Trucks."

"Virgil who?" asked Jackson. "Virgil Trucks," said Palmer. "He pitched two no-hitters once in the same season. I think he gave the Yankees a lot of trouble. You know, being from New York, I used to be slightly prejudiced. I always thought Clete Boyer was the best third baseman and Sam Huff was the best linebacker."

"Huff was the best linebacker, wasn't he?" put in Jackson.

"He could've been," said Palmer, "but one of the things I remember is how this best friend of mine kept telling me how Brooks Robinson was a much better third baseman than Clete Boyer. This was in Scottsdale, Arizona, after my family moved there. The Orioles used to train there and the only one my friend talked about all the time was Brooks Robinson. He said Brooks was the best there was. I said 'Brooks who?' That's the truth. I never heard of him before. Then when I saw him for the first time, I thought to myself who's this guy with no hair? How can he be the best third baseman in baseball?"

In due time, Jim Palmer found out he was.

One of them though is get gasoline.

Denver Changes Guards

DENVER (UPI) — Denver had two guards in this year's American Basketball Association All-Star game, but within the next month, the Rockets could be starting a brand new backcourt.

Warren Jabali was placed on waivers Feb. 1 and the Rockets' other all-star, Ralph Simpson, could find himself moving up front before too long.

"I feel Ralph can move up front if he works on his rebounding because of his strength and jumping ability," said Rocket Coach Alex Hannum. "I would love to give Ralph an honest shot up front."

The reason Hannum is talking so freely about the move of Simpson, which has been rumored all season, is the emergence of guards Al Smith—who replaced Jabali in the starting lineup — and Steve Jones, picked up from Carolina in a trade for Marvin Roberts last month.

Last night, for example, while Simpson was hospitalized with strep throat, Jones had 23 points, seven assists and six rebounds while Smith was scoring 12 points, dishing out 15 assists and picking off five rebounds in Denver's 103-91 win over Utah.

In the only other American Basketball Association game, Indiana downed Virginia 107-102.

Nicklaus, Miller Head List For Masters Golf

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The hottest names in professional golf, Johnny Miller and Jack Nicklaus, head the player list for the April 11-14 1974 Masters Golf Tournament, tourney officials said.

Cliff Roberts, chairman of the Augusta National Golf Club, announced during the weekend that 64 professionals and 11 amateurs were invited to the annual spring event. The list includes 12 players who never played in the Masters before but have won Professional Golfers Association or amateur titles.

The U. S. player list includes 21 Masters champions, including defender Tommy Aaron, of Gainesville, three U. S. Open winners, two U. S. amateur champions, one British amateur winner and two PGA champions.

Invited along with Miller and Nicklaus was longtime veteran Sam Snead. The newcomers included PGA winners Sam Adams, John Mahaffey, John Schroder and Ed Sneed.

Marin Tars Shut Out Napa In Baseball

NAPA — Mark Ruggles' curve ball is alive and well, much to the chagrin of the batters from Napa College.

Ruggles, College of Marin's left-handed freshman curve ball, improved his 1974 record to 4-1 Saturday by handcuffing Napa on a four-hitter. He struck out 11, walked three and was "in command all the way," according to coach Vic Petreshene.

Nick Mattos, John Billings and Jeff Fanfelle had two hits each and Mattos drove in two runs as the Tars (6-2) won their fourth straight.

O'Hara's Four Goals Lead Hockey Squirts

John O'Hara finished his hockey season among a blaze of red lights yesterday, scoring four goals as the Marin Amateur Hockey Club Squirts took a 6-1 victory over host San Francisco in a Northern California Amateur Hockey League game.

In other season-ending contests, the Mites lost at San Francisco, 4-2, the Bantams tied Santa Rosa, 7-7, and the Pee Wees lost to Santa Rosa, 6-0. The Bantam and Pee Wee games were played at Ray-dine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera.

Yogi Hitless

Yogi Berra went hitless in his first seven at bats in his first two World Series games in 1947.

All of our Porsche 911s are upholstered in fine leather. They feel and smell like new cars for about 10 years.

We think that's just a minor reason for buying a new Porsche 911. Gas mileage up to 29 mpg. Depreciation that is almost non-existent. These are the important things. One owner Porsches up to 14 years old are not unusual. People know when they make a good investment.

Balky Gas Can Costly To Petty In Richmond 500

Combined AP & UPI
RICHMOND, Va. — Bobby Allison cruised home the winner of the Richmond 500 yesterday, by a margin of eight car lengths over Richard Petty, but the real difference between the two might have been a balky gas can.

Allison, one-half of the famous racing brother team from Hueytown, Ala., took the lead on lap 307 of the 500-lap race. After 88 laps, Petty pushed his Dodge into the lead, one of four times he was at the front of the pack.

But when Petty pitted on lap 406, a gasoline can stuck to his fuel tank, and pitmen hesitated to waste any time by pulling it off.

The Randleman, N.C., native rushed from the pit, holding his lead over second-place Allison. After two laps, Petty returned to his pit, unloaded the can and hurried back onto the course, but the few lost seconds were decisive.

Allison took the lead when Petty dumped his freeloader, on the 408th lap, and held it to the end, pocketing $6,330 for his efforts and patience.

Petty had to console himself with second prize money of $3,430 and the reality of his first loss at the Richmond Fairgrounds Speedway in more than three years. Allison, who earned the pole position Friday with a 90-plus miles per hour qualifying run, averaged 80.391 over the .542-mile course in his Chevrolet.

THE PRIZE — Bobby Allison showed off his winner's trophy after capturing the Richmond (Va.) 500 auto race yesterday and ending Richard Petty's seven-race victory streak in the process. (UPI Telephone) shattered the world indoor record for 5,000 meters by 3.4 seconds with a time of 13:30.8. On the way, he was clocked in 13:05.2 for three miles, surpassing the world record by two seconds at a track and field meet.

Gibson Is Prepared For Writers

Bob Gibson, never noted for his fondness of sportswriters, came prepared to the St. Louis Cardinals' training camp this spring.

Gibson, the 38-year old veteran right-handed ace of the Cardinals' staff, reported to camp yesterday, worked out briefly and then left a sign on his locker designed to answer any questions the writers might ask him.

"In case I'm not here," the sign said, "knee feels bad. Weather doesn't matter. Arm doesn't feel too good yet. None of your damn business."

The ready-made answers were in, in order, reference to (1) and (2) his recent knee surgery, (3) how much he'll be able to affect where the Cardinals might finish (4) his recent divorce.

Sideline 55 days last year because of surgery to his knee, Gibson, a two-time Cy Young Award winner and five-time 20-game winner, wound up 12-10 for his 14th season and must be considered a questionmark this season.

Elsewhere around the camps, Fritz Peterson, the Yankees' enigmatic lefthander, agreed to terms with the club yesterday for a substantial cut. "It was a bigger cut than I expected," said Peterson, who last year at this time was experiencing marital problems with his former teammate Mike Kekich. "I didn't go to arbitration because I don't want any publicity or problems."

The Cincinnati Reds, hampered by a series of injuries to their executives, have only two players left unsigned — out fielder Pete Rose, the National League's Most Valuable Player, and rubber-armed relief pitcher Pedro Borbon.

BASKETBALL UCLA In Bay Area Friday

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
The UCLA Bruins, winners of seven National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball crowns in a row and nine over the past 10 years, come to the San Francisco Bay Area this weekend to take on Cal and Stanford.

Both the Friday night game against the Bears at the Oakland Coliseum Arena and the Saturday game at Stanford are sold out.

The Bruins downed Washington, 99-65, Saturday night and coach John Wooden dropped a hint that this may be his final season at UCLA.

"I'll welcome the challenge to next year's youngsters if I'm here next year," he said after the win.

Wooden, 63, was asked if that meant he had coached his final game at Pauley Pavilion.

"I won't comment on that at this moment," he answered.

Meanwhile, USC stayed even in the Pac-8 race with UCLA by downing Washington State, 86-59, with Bob Trowbridge connecting for 25 points.

California lost to Oregon State, 77-73, and Stanford bowed to Oregon, 72-71.

In the West Coast Athletic Conference, University of San Francisco clinched at least a tie for the title by downing Pepperdine, 68-55 on a 32-point outburst by Phil Smith.

In other contests it was: Seattle Pacific, 88, Portland, 68; Los Angeles State, 95, San Jose State, 67; Fresno State 82, UOP, 63; Nevada-Las Vegas, 85, Seattle 75.

Sonoma Wrestler Triumphs

HAYWARD — It was easy to see why Sonoma State College's Ed Buonaccorsi was voted the Far Western Conference's most outstanding wrestler in the FWC tournament.

Buonaccorsi successfully defended his league 126-pound title here Saturday, and led Sonoma State College to a sixth-place finish despite being the only Cossack at the tournament.

He will next compete in the National Collegiate Athletic Association small college championships at Fullerton State College Friday.

Buonaccorsi had a first-round bye Saturday, and then defeated San Francisco's Jim Scott, 10-3, and Chico's Val Vorobieff, 3-1, to win the title.

SONOMA SCHEDULE

St. Vincent Hosts Tournament

With the high school basketball season nearly over and spring sports waiting to fully bloom next month, there will be a limited schedule of sports this week in southern Sonoma.

St. Vincent High School will be hosting its fourth annual basketball invitational Thursday through Saturday at Petaluma High School. The Mustangs face Potter Valley in their opener Thursday at 9 p.m.

Sonoma State Wins 2, Loses 2 In Baseball

The explosive Sonoma State College baseball team won two and lost two non-conference games over the weekend.

Sonoma State scored seven runs in the eighth inning yesterday for a 9-2 victory in the nightcap of a doubleheader with Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo. The Cossacks dropped the opener, 12-2.

In Rohnert Park Saturday, the Cossacks (3-5) split a twin-bill with University of San Francisco, losing the opener, 8-1, but taking the second game, 12-2. A 10-run second inning highlighted Sonoma's win over USF.

Unusual Consignment Shop Will Be Opened Tomorrow

Hidden Assets, a new and unusual consignment shop featuring quality clothing, antiques and art objects, will open for business tomorrow in San Rafael in the Redwood Bank Mall at 1435 Fourth Street.

Four women, who have varied experiences in antiques, clothing and decorating, combined their talents to offer fashionable prices.

Proprietors are Billie (Mrs. Roger) Sheridan of Kentfield, Oma (Mrs. William) Pemberton of Mill Valley, and San Rafael residents Ann (Mrs. Don Murray) and Vi (Mrs. Richard) May.

Clothing, antiques and art objects may be left on consignment at the Hidden Assets from Tuesdays through Fridays, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., which are the store hours.

The new consignment shop took over space formerly used by executives of Redwood Bank.

WES FREY of Petaluma has been promoted by Safeway Stores Inc. to manager of its San Rafael store at 700 B Street.

Frey started his Safeway career in 1962 and gained his basic experience in Marin County stores, advancing to assistant manager of the San Rafael store in 1965. Since 1969, he has been managing several stores in San Francisco.

"It's a pleasure to be back in San Rafael, and I look forward to seeing many of my old customers and friends," said Frey.

LAWRENCE J. KLINEFELTER of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president and assistant manager of Crocker Bank's San Rafael main office at 1203 Fourth Street.

Klinefelter, who had been assistant vice president, joined Crocker Bank in 1966 after a 22-year Navy career.

SMALL BUSINESS owners often want someone to "tend the store" for them while they take a day or a weekend off, or go on vacation.

To fill that need, two San Rafael women just launched a small business tending service which they call Dennett-Reese Associates, located at 19 Elkin Court, San Rafael.

Principals are Sally Dennett, who was research assistant at a San Francisco hospital for the past two years; and Harriet Reese, who worked at the Bank of America in San Francisco for 18 years. They also have secretarial and sales experience. Mrs. Reese, a San Rafael resident for 26 years, is the wife of Fielding Reese, a counselor at College of Marin. Mrs. Dennett has a degree in art education from Portland State University and lived in Paris for two years before coming to the Bay Area four years ago.

They will serve as substitute managers for small businesses like boutiques, gift shops, dress shops and galleries, whose owners want some time off. "Whenever regular managers or owners need time off, we go in to relieve them," said Mrs. Reese. "We can also take care of phone calls and take care of their well, not like an answering service."

Dennett-Reese Associates charges a flat fee for its services, and the employers need not worry about social security, insurance, retirement and other employee benefits.

"We're not really competing with employment agencies," said Mrs. Dennett. "We feel we are an extension service, which this county needs."

DAHLMAN & COMPANY'S San Rafael branch at 818 Fifth Avenue changed its affiliation last Friday to Beckman & Co. Inc., investment securities firm headquartered in Lodi.

The entire San Rafael staff, headed by Resident Manager Robert A. Stribling, is now a branch of Beckman & Co. instead of Dahlman & Co.

"Nothing has changed with our past clients except that we can offer them added opportunities through Beckman & Co.," said Stribling. "In addition to dealing in all of the stock exchanges, we are now also members of the Chicago Option Board and Chicago Board of Trade." Stribling said the San Rafael office now offers services in stock options and commodities futures (trading in commodities like gold, silver and grain), in addition to stocks, bonds and mutual funds.

Stribling's staff includes John P. Piggras of San Rafael, L. Robert Larson of Novato, Raymond T. Haas of Terra Linda, William Sundeen of Marinwood, and Baron Herwitz of San Francisco. Their offices and telephone numbers remain the same as before.

Widow Is Wondering About Stock Holding

BY ROGER E. SPEAR
Q. I am a widow with three small children and I depend on dividends from my holdings for income. I own 900 CNA Financial (NYSE), which has dropped considerably. I am wondering if I should sell it.—C.R.

A. Several problem areas in this insurance/financial service company's operations contributed to a sharp drop in earnings. The dividend rate, however, has been maintained. Larwin Group, a homebuilding subsidiary, took a $4.1 million after-tax extraordinary writoff and the Continental Casualty subsidiary also wrote down losses to the extent of $16 million after taxes. Because the currently depressed share price fully reflects these adverse factors and the dividend is still intact, I would wait for a rally before selling this speculative holding.

Q. Would you give an analysis of Systems Engineering Labs (ASE), and advise what action to take on these shares bought several years ago?—D.E.

A. For the six months ended December, the company reported a $2.4 million operating loss in addition to taking $2.4 million in writoffs of obsolete equipment plus inventory and good will associated with a discontinued line of small computers. Sales were off 22 per cent year to year. Although backlog has expanded substantially reflecting newly received orders, the shares will probably continue their sideways market action in the face of discouraging operating results. Sell.

Stock Sales Are Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks were mixed on the New York Stock Exchange today, with profit taking making an appearance following last week's powerful rally.

Investors apparently were encouraged by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's latest peace mission to the Middle East. Wall Street was hoping it would hasten the end of the Arab oil embargo.

On the American Exchange, stocks rose slightly in light trading.

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $6.075 cents per fine ounce up 16.5 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $6.075 up 16.5 cents and fabricated silver at $6.136 up 16.6 cents.
